STATE CONTROL OF JOBLESS AID WINS IN SENATE

George Bill Passed by 55-19 Vote.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—The New Deal's scheme for federal control over millions of post-war unemployed was defeated in the senate tonight by a vote of 49 to 25.

A "states' rights" measure, sponsored by Sen. George [D., Ga.], which sets up an office of war mobilization and reconversion and adds 3½ million persons to the list of those eligible for state controled payments to the jobless was then approved, 55 to 19.

In four days of violent debate, the administration's proposal, introduced by Senators Kilgore [D., W. Va.] and Murray [D., Mont.], had been scored as regimentation in its worst form and a drain upon the nation's economy.

New Deal Plan Assailed.

The final hours of debate found Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] denouncing the measure as an approach to Hitler's national socialism and Sen. Tydings [D., Md.] terming its tremendous cost, estimated at 20 billion dollars a year, as presaging "a depression which could conceivably make the 1929 crash look like Coolidge prosperity."

A last minute attempt at a compromise by Murray failed. He offered to cut the $20 to $35 scale of unemployment benefits to an $8 to $20 basis. But he would not eliminate the federal burocratic powers over the jobless contained in the bill, so the opposition refused to yield.

A combination of 26 Republicans and 23 conservative Democrats defeated the Kilgore-Murray bill in a test vote on an amendment offered by George which struck out most of the New Deal proposals and substituted a reconversion program based on the Baruch-Hancock report.

Sets Up Reconversion Head.

Under the George bill, as it was sent to the house, a director of war mobilization and reconversion, receiving $15,000 a year, will formulate plans to meet the problems arising out of the transition from war to peace and will recommend to congress legislation to carry out these plans.

A special joint committee on post-war adjustment also is established in congress, to be composed of four members of each house. This committee is ordered to study legislation on demobilization and post-war adjustment and the reports submitted by the war mobilization director.

A retaining and reëmployment administration is established under a $12,000 a year director. It will have general supervision over all government agencies relating to the retraining and reëmployment of persons released from the fighting services or from war work.

Eligible List 44½ Million.

The 3½ million persons added to those eligible for unemployment compensation from the states, under the George bill, are largely government employes, including those now working in arsenals and shipyards. Thirty million other workers and 11 million in the army and navy already are eligible for such benefits under existing legislation.

Sen. Maloney [D., Conn.] offered a surprise motion to send the whole legislation back to the finance committee for "calm consideration." It was defeated, 59 to 14, with Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] and Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] opposing the move as tending to postpone action indefinitely.

His Quick Results Open Even the Potatoes' Eyes!

Augusta, Me., Aug. 11 (AP).—Everything was "swell" in Aroostook county except for one thing—lack of rain, Gov. Sumner Sewall told an audience during his inspection tour of the Maine potato empire. "If you do anything—pray for rain," he said. The words had hardly been uttered when rain began to fall in torrents. A cheer went up from the crowd of potato farmers. In drenched clothes they listened intently to the remainder of the governor's message and the moment he stopped speaking the rain stopped.

Capt. Harrison Says Door Can Screen Slayer

(Since Jan. 19 police have been searching for "a woman in black," who shot and mortally wounded Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a Washington diplomatic attache, in her room in the Drake hotel. The same woman fired upon Mrs. Williams' pretty daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, but missed. Who was this killer? Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Goodbody saw her, but neither could identify her. Two business men saw her, but cannot identify her. A third woman is definitely placed in the room. But Lt. John A. Quinn expresses doubt of the existence of this third woman. Today Capt. Harrison, in his "Report on the Drake Murder Case," tells of his own investigation to determine the existence of the third woman.)

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Lt. Quinn's assertion that he didn't believe there was a third person in room 836 of the Drake hotel struck like a bombshell in a small group within hearing. A glance behind the bathroom door had convinced him that it would be difficult for a person to hide behind that door.

Behind the door Quinn saw a standard sized ironing board, standing on end, and on the floor an electric iron with a long cord.

Quinn placed a detective on the toilet chair and then stood behind the door. Quinn said he was forced to kick the iron out of the way in order to stand there. Quinn is larger in girth and taller than the 135 pound, five foot three inch woman whom Mrs. Goodbody described as coming from behind the door.

Demands "Truth" of Daughter.

Lt. Quinn, having tried to restage the shooting according to Mrs. Goodbody's story, went across the hall to room 801, and confronted her.

"Patricia," he said, "you're not telling the truth. I want the truth of what happened in that room. There never was a third party in the room."

Mrs. Goodbody asked permission to see her mother taken to the hospital, but Quinn insisted on questioning her. He searched for a gun under her chair. He found none. As Quinn faced the distraught girl her father, Born, and his lawyer friend, Rosenberg, stood silently by.

Detective Dan Burns of the homicide squad also joined in the search for the gun. Inasmuch as Mrs. Williams' husband was connected with Washington, Burns suggested that the case was one for the FBI.

Lt. Quinn then made another demand, "Tell the truth, that's all I want."

Attorney Interrupts Statement.

Quinn testified at the inquest held on Feb. 8 that Mrs. Goodbody said, "Well, lieutenant, I'll tell you——" She never finished the statement. According to Quinn, Atty. Rosen-

'Pass' at Wife Started Fight, Says Dorsey

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 11 [Special].—Band Leader Tommy Dorsey, breaking a six day silence on his version of the "battle of the balcony," in which Actor Jon Hall suffered wounds requiring almost 50 stitches, today charged he was slugged by the actor when he tried to save his wife, Actress Pat Dane, from Hall's amorous attentions.

Dorsey, attired in a blue sport coat and dark glasses, and flanked by his two attorneys, told his story in the office of Dist. Atty. Fred Howser, who is investigating the affray. The fight occurred early Saturday morning on the baleony of Dorsey's swank Sunset plaza apartment.

Only His Fists.

The band leader told Deputy District Atty. Edwin Meyers he used only his fists against Hall, denying Hall's charges and Hollywood stories that the actor had been slashed by knives and broken glass and had been struck on the head with a flower pot.

"I invited Jon Hall with other guests to my home after an evening at the Clover club," Dorsey said. "Almost from the time he came into our apartment he began making passes at my wife. It was very embarrassing for her and I was on the verge several times of ordering him to leave. But I have known his wife, Frances Langford, for a long time and hesitated doing anything that might hurt her. We were all relieved when Hall finally left.

"I had just stepped out on our balcony for a breath of fresh air before going to bed when the doorbell rang and my wife answered. I looked into the living room from the balcony and there was Hall again and he put his arm around my wife and held her as she tried to draw away and began running his hands over her body.

Tells Him Off.

"I yelled in and asked him to come out on the balcony and there began telling him off. I told him it was a fine thing for him to act that way when his sweet little wife was out in the South Seas entertaining the soldiers and I told him he ought to be ashamed of himself.

"Hall got hot and slugged me. I had my glasses on and I tried to get them off. I think with the first blow he broke my nose.

"Blood was flying and he got my head under his arm and was beating the hell out of me and I could hear my wife screaming for help and presently other guys pulled him away from me.

"I went to the bathroom to lick my wounds. What happened on the balcony after I left I cannot say. However, at no time did I see any one with knives or any other weapons but their fists."

In addition to Dorsey and his wife, Al Smiley, Actor Eddie Norris, Actress Jane Churchill, and others who say they witnessed the brawl are being questioned.

Norris and Miss Churchill today repeated their earlier stories of the battle, denying Hall had made any overtures toward Mrs. Dorsey. Norris said he entered the fray when some one yelled to him, "They're killing Jon. Come quick!"

TELL HOW HIDDEN JAP KILLED SON OF SLAIN GEN. M'NAIR

WITH U. S. ARMY FORCES AT GUAM, Aug. 7 [Delayed]—(AP).—Col. Douglas McNair, 36, chief of staff of the 77th army division, was killed yesterday in the northern Guam area at a point where 4,000 troops had passed safely shortly before.

[The war department announced McNair's death on Aug. 7.]

McNair, 1928 graduate of West Point, was a son of Lt. Gen. Lesley McNair who lost his life last month on a Normandy battlefield in France.

The colonel, seeking his new command post, was fatally wounded when he approached a native hut where Sgt. Alfred Cawley of Swansea, Mass., had noticed a Japanese.

Cawley said the colonel approached to within 20 feet of the hut after the sergeant sighted the Japanese inside. McNair fired four shots from his pistol while Cawley emptied two rifle clips into the shack. During the exchange of shots McNair was hit above the breast bone. He died en route to the hospital in a jeep.

3 WAYS TO HELP PAPER PICKUP AT CURB TODAY

Three rules for the city-wide waste paper pickup today were stressed last night:

1. Gather all kinds of waste paper from attic, basement, or garage and tie into secure bundles about one foot thick.

2. Make separate bundles of newspapers, and magazines.

3. Place the bundles at the street curb before 8 o'clock this morning for collection by volunteer trucks and workers.

If every household will put all its waste paper at the curbs the goal of 5,000 tons for the day should be reached easily, salvage officials said last night. The collection will help to supply seriously needed blood plasma boxes, food containers, and many other military items. Proceeds from the sale of the paper will go to service men's centers, Boy Scouts, and other civic groups.

Pastor Fights OPA Denial of Tires for Car

McLeansboro, Ill., Aug. 11 [Special].—The Rev. H. F. Menke, a Baptist minister, who said he never had any trouble with the OPA until he switched recently from the Democratic to the Republican party, today drove his automobile to the town square and parked it there so that all might see the three worn out tires for which he has been refused replacements.

Two of the aged tires on the wheels were flat. The spare, standing on a seat inside the car, had a large hole thru which the inner tube protruded.

Signs on Car.

On the windshield was a sign: "The New Deal has tires for beer and whisky trucks but none to go to church." Another sign, in a side window, said: "The New Deal opposes Christianity. No mileage shall be permitted for evangelism." And a tihrd sign gave the name and address of the owner.

The Rev. Mr. Menke, pastor of the Baptist church in Dahlgren, 12 miles from here, said he first applied for a new automobile tire July 1 after one of his tires had been condemned. He said he was told at the local ration board that no tires were to be had. Later in the month he went back again, after a second tire had been condemned. He was given no help.

"On Wednesday I made a third trip to the board," the minister said. "An OPA man told me I might be able to get one. But by that time I needed three. I told him one wouldn't do me any good."

Not Obstructing Traffic.

Menke said unsuccessful efforts to get his car off the street were made during the day by Jack Shepherd, member of the ration board, ex-sheriff and chairman of the Hamilton county Democratic central committee.

"Before a crowd of about 50 persons, Shepherd cursed me and said he would take this matter as high as he could," the minister said. "I told him that was as far as I could move my crippled car and I asked him why he bawled me out when I was going to have to walk. However, I told him not to touch the car, because it was private property.

Shepherd demanded that Sheriff Elwood Barker have the car moved, Menke said, but the sheriff said he lacked authority since it was not obstructing traffic. The preacher said he would be unable to hold church this Sunday since he would not have a car that would function and taxis may not go as far out of town as his church.

ACTS AS STRIKE PERILS FLOW OF WAR GOODS

F.D.R. Names ODT Operating Agency.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—The government tonight seized 103 midwestern truck companies embrolled in a strike of 25,000 drivers, established a federal manager and ordered all the men back to work immediately to avert a traffic bottleneck that was rapidly endangering movement of military supplies.

Ellis Longenecker.

President Roosevelt ordered the seizure at 5:30 p. m. [4:30 p. m., Chicago time]. He assigned the office of defense transportation to conduct the 50 million dollar segment of the trucking industry until the controversy is settled. He said the weight of the army would be behind the ODT in its task.

Wage Increase Ordered.

The truck drivers quit work last week after the companies refused to pay a 7 cent an hour wage increase ordered by the war labor board. The operators said they could not afford it unless they got financial relief from the government.

[President William Wilson and Secretary Lou Hosking of the Midwestern Operators' association have charged that the administration has not kept faith with them. They asserted that two months ago the office of defense transportation, the office of economic security, and the interstate commerce commission agreed with their position that they needed financial relief such as freight rate increases to meet the WLB's wage boost order. "Despite repeated appeals and suggestions to different governmental agencies by the midwest operators since that time, no financial relief of any kind has been worked out," Wilson said.]

Get Wage Increase.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of ODT, said his organization was taking over actual operations at midnight and from that time on the men would be paid the authorized wage boost. Back pay from November, when the WLB order was handed down, will be given to the drivers only from the future net operating revenue of each company, Col. Johnson said.

The ODT chief named Ellis T. Longenecker of the highway transport division as federal manager of the truck companies which handle 5 million tons of freight annually in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and parts of Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

Unduly Impeded.

Chairman William H. Davis of the WLB informed President Roosevelt of the noncompliance by the operators and said transport of material for 300 major war plants was jeopardized. The army said it had been able to get by, up to now, but Mr. Roosevelt in his order of seizure remarked:

"There are threatened interruptions of the operation of transportation systems as a result of a labor disturbance. The war effort will be unduly impeded or delayed by such interruptions."

Threat of Food Shortages.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 11 [Special].—The threat of food shortages appeared in many Nebraska communities today because of the tie-up in deliveries caused by the midwest truckers' strike.

At least 500 communities dependent on trucks for daily supplies of groceries and meats have been without shipments of foodstuffs since the strike began last Saturday. Reserve stocks of meat and groceries were being used in many places and a meat shortage was reported at Alliance, Neb.

Praises Troops Who Won and Built Up Bases

F.D.R. on Air Tonight

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt will broadcast from the navy yard at Bremerton, near Seattle, Wash., tomorrow at 7 p. m., Chicago war time, the White House announced tonight.

ALEUTIAN ISLAND BASE, Alaska, Aug. 3 [Delayed] (AP).—President Roosevelt paid this Aleutian base a surprise visit today and, in turn, was surprised by what he saw. He said he was thrilled and gratified.

It was the President's first trip to the Aleutians, made on his first Pacific traveling of the war. He came by warship, by the way of Honolulu. The chief executive praised the forces participating in the Aleutian campaign and in the construction program. He said they had driven out the enemy and had built new military, naval, and air bases on once remote, barren islands in an incredibly short time.

Accompanied by Fletcher.

Accompanied by Vice Adm. Frank Jack Fletcher, commander in the North Pacific, the President toured the island's installations.

He expressed a wish that the people back home could see what had been done.

The Japanese, he said, would never again be able to threaten North America with an Alaskan invasion.

Mr. Roosevelt's impromptu remarks were made at an informal luncheon at an enlisted men's mess, where he made a noon stop during the inspection tour.

Homes for Soldiers.

He said he considered some parts of the United States overpopulated and predicted that many soldiers and sailors would seek new homes in Alaska after the war. The territory's great size and known resources, he added, invited settlers.

The President did not discuss any specific war plans for this or any other theaters. Neither did he comment on the national political campaign, in which he is the national Democratic nominee for a fourth term.

All persons who had luncheon with the chief executive—except the navy base commandant and the army post commander—were enlisted soldiers, sailors, and marines. A proportionate number of Negroes were mixed thruout the long mess hall.

Talks with Privates.

The chatty, smiling commander in chief ate from the navy regulation, metal serving tray. He was seated between two youthful privates—a red haired marine from Arkansas and a trim soldier from New Jersey.

Marine Pvt. William Goff, 19, whose father is foreman of the ice company at Batesville, Ark., talked easily with the President in response to questions.

Ferdinand Rutscher, 20, of Irvington, N. J., the soldier, gave and lighted an after lunch cigaret for the President. He grinned when his flint lighter worked on the first try.

Another member of the armed forces singled out by the President during the day for special notice was a navy nurse. She was Lt. [j. g.] Margaret Richards, whose family, formerly of Baltimore, Md., now lives in Woodside, Long Island, N. Y.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 12 [Saturday].—Striking out in two new directions, American tanks today were driving north of Le Mans to encircle an estimated 100,000 troops of the German 7th army in Normandy and were smashing toward southern France after cracking the Loire river barrier below captured Nantes in a 10 mile advance.

The swift moving northern column, the Paris radio said, already had driven thru Alencon, 33 miles from the 1st Canadian army battling down the road to Falaise from Caen. The Canadian army, which now includes British and Polish units, was being held up by a powerful German defense screen running from Vimont to the area of Pontigny, five miles north of Falaise. Heavy fighting was going on for Vimont.

Mop Up North Bank.

In their drive beyond the Loire, less than a day after Nantes was seized, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's forces still had encountered no resistance in force. Between Nantes and Angers, which also was captured yesterday, American troops were mopping up along the north bank of the Loire, but no additional crossing in this area was reported

The battle for Brittany's ports raged on unabated. The Americans storming Brest were joined by a new column which had driven 125 miles along the north coast. At this port, elements of three German divisions were holding out from strong enemy positions.

Yanks Shell Lorient.

American artillery was attacking the submarine nests of Lorient on the south coast. German troops and naval units were holed up here under the protection of heavy concrete U-boat pens. The garrison rejected an ultimatum to surrender.

The citadel of St. Malo, north Brittany port, was being reduced steadily and there was fierce fighting in Dinard, across the bay.

There was no news from St. Nazaire, the second south Brittany submarine base altho the Germans reported the Americans had launched an attack.

Bradley's forces based on Le Mans were lashing out in all directions over the northern plains of France. In addition to the column dashing north to pinch off a German army which once boasted more than 30 divisions, three other forces moved forward under a cloak of silence to keep the Germans guessing.

Strike for Chartres.

One of these struck toward Chartres, 45 miles from Paris. Another was headed for Chateaudun, which guards the road to Orleans, and the fourth was believed heading toward Tours to solidify the hold on the Loire river. British reports that the Yanks had reached both Chartres and Chateaudun were not confirmed.

Paris broadcasts said that German troops had fought back into Le Mans yesterday and recaptured the town, but there was no allied indication that this was true.

While the left flank of the British in Normandy was stalled, yesterday was a day of steady progress for the right flank. The British continued to advance south and southeast from the Orne bridgehead. They stormed into the hill top fortress of Thury-Harcourt—one of the major objectives on D-day—13 miles south of Caen, and thrust three miles southeast to take Esson.

The Orne below Thury-Harcourt was crossed again and the threat to the comparatively large enemy force west of the Orne was increased. The Germans holding out between Thury-Harcout and Falaise now were said to be in a precarious position.

South of Thury-Harcout the British drove on toward Conde in another threat to the German escape route and were within 4½ miles of the town. To the west more British troops thrust beyond the Vire-Conde road to tighten the grip on the Germans in and around Mortain.

Mortain was reported to be encircled by American troops, and it was indicated that the Germans in this area were trapped.

Repulse Attacks on Gathemo.

German attacks on Gathemo, to the north of Mortain, were repulsed, after the town was recaptured by the Yanks who pushed on two and a half miles. Front line dispatches asserted that the enemy was engaged in a hopeless task since his lines of supply and retreat were in danger of being cut at several points.

The Americans were exerting constant pressure against the Germans in the Mortain-Vire sector. German counter-attacks were said to be more along the line of delaying action than any serious threat to the Avranches-Mortain corridor thru which have passed the great forces of men and armor now in possession of most of Brittany.

Captured German prisoners reported that Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge had ordered a general retreat south of Caen, but it was reported there was no sign of any such movement. It was believed the Germans are more or less forced to stand and fight below Caen because any wholesale attempt to move out would be disastrous in view of the superiority of allied air forces. In the 24 hours ending Wednesday, midmight, the Yanks captured 4,322 Germans.

Report Nazis Moving Up.

Pilots reported German trains moving steadily westward from Antwerp, Brussels, Metz, Strasbourg, Lille, and Sedan. This was taken as an indication that the Germans may be getting ready to stage a battle in strength west of the Seine river to give them time for new developments east of the river.

Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, chief of the allied ground forces, in a message to his troops, said that "the great bulk of the German forces in northwest Europe are in a bad way," adding that "we are 'round behind them in many places and it's possible some of them may not get away."

GERMAN WAR REPORT:

Following is the Friday German war bulletin as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"In the area southeast of Caen the enemy penetration area was sealed off and a coherent front line was reëstablished. Since early morning the enemy artillery fire has increased. In the sector on both sides of the Orne the enemy made only local attacks yesterday which were unsuccessful. Thirty-two enemy tanks were destroyed.

"Particularly heavy fighting took place for the penetration area south of Vire. The enemy did not succeed in widening the penetration, owing to our counter-attacks.

"In the Le Mans area, fierce fighting is in progress against the enemy attacking in a northern direction, supported by strong air formations.

"The defenders of St. Nazaire, Lorient and Brest, composed of members of all three German armed forces, threw back all enemy attacks, supported by tanks, with heavy losses. More than 40 enemy tanks have been destroyed northeast of Brest in the past few days. The garrison of St. Malo held the town yesterday against continuous and furious American attacks."

AMERICANS IN POLISH ARMOR FIGHT NEAR CAEN

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 11 (AP).—A Polish armored division, with Americans among the personnel, is fighting on the Canadian sector in France, it was disclosed today. It captured three towns and advanced about five miles in the Caen-Falaise push.

The Americans, of Polish descent, volunteered in 1939 in Canada, and most of them have had to learn Polish since they enlisted.

About 1,000 of the soldiers come from a motorized brigade that fought the German 2d armored division in Poland. They have received permission to fight it again if it is met on this sector.

POLES IN ITALY GAIN IN PUSH ON NAZIS' ANCHOR

Reach River 17 Miles Below Pesaro.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 11 (AP).—An offensive by Polish troops on the Adriatic flank of the 8th army has rolled to the Cesano river, only 17 miles from Pesaro and the eastern end of the Germans' Gothic line, allied headquarters announced today.

Polish patrols already had crossed the river and field dispatches said pressure had caused the Germans to withdraw from the southern bank of the Cesano, 40 miles below Rimini.

In an advance of two miles, this two day old allied thrust had seized the towns of Scapezzano, Monterado, and Corinaldo, and the Poles were about half way between captured Ancona and the next major port, Pesaro. Italian troops also are participating in the drive.

Five Nazi Blows Repulsed.

Five unsuccessful counter-attacks cost the Germans further heavy casualties. The enemy used many mortars and self-propelled guns. Three hundred Germans were captured at the start of the action.

Severe storms hampered the push and limited activity along most of the remainder of the 8th and 5th army fronts.

Allied units moved up to the south bank of the Arno river east of Florence, however, inside Florence some sniping, mostly attributed to Fascists, continued. Artillery continued to shell allied communications in the southern outskirts of Florence.

There were unverified reports that explosions had been heard in northern Florence, leading to speculation that the Germans were blocking roads with demolitions.

Indians Continue Patrols.

East of Florence Indian troops continued their patroling. A letter written by a captured Nazi sentry said the Indians "creep up on one, their knives between their teeth, and kill us unawares."

The food situation of the populace in southern Florence has been eased, with AMG [allied military government] sending an average of 60 tons of foodstuffs daily to the 80,000 persons there. Transportation of the food was complicated by Nazi fire on the roads leading into the city.

R.A.F. BOMBERS POUND BERLIN AND RAILWAY JUNCTION IN FRANCE

LONDON, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—(AP).—British Mosquitos bombed Berlin during the night, for the second successive night, and a force of four engine Lancasters attacked a railway junction at Givors in France, it was announced today.

The Luxembourg radio today sounded a warning that planes were approaching, indicating daylight attacks were getting off to an early start. The weather broke fairly clear over the straits.

Up to 500 American heavies attacked fuel dumps at St. Florentin and Pacy on the Armancon river 75 miles southeast of Paris, railway yards at Mulhouse and Belfort in Alsace Lorraine, and three air fields in the vicinity of Paris.

In a second operation, both Fortresses and Liberators flew to the French-German border and loosed explosives on Nazi freight yards at Saarbrucken and Strasbourg and a fuel depot at the latter city.

Danes Report Nazi Troops Moving Toward France

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 11 (AP). — Twelve Nazi troop trains were reported by the Free Danish press service today to have passed southward thru Aarhus in the last 24 hours, indicating a heavy movement of German troops from Denmark, probably toward France.

ST. MALO FIGHT ON AGAIN AFTER NAZIS 3D TRUCE

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 11 (AP).—St. Malo's mad commander, Col. Andreas von Aulock, fought on today after the third truce since the siege of St. Malo citadel began.

This morning Von Aulock appealed for medical supplies and parties bearing white flags crossed 200 yards of no-man's land. As an American jeep with supplies drove up to the citadel a small party appeared at a tunnel, including a medical officer, six German orderlies, and seven blindfolded American soldiers who had been captured and now were released.

The Americans said there was no doubt the garrison, except for the commander, wanted to give up as "German losses are frightful" and wounded lie everywhere.

Five minutes after the truce the battle was resumed amid a roar of cannon fire.

Greeks Raid Island; Free Hostages from Gestapo

CAIRO, Aug. 11 (AP).—A Greek Aegean raiding force has struck successfully at the Island of Lesbos [Mytilene], Greek island west of the Turkish mainland, it was announced tonight. The raiders released hundreds of hostages from Gestapo headquarters, killed two Germans, wounded eight, and set afire and destroyed Gestapo buildings.

ROBOT BOMB STRIKES MOVIE; CURTAIN SAVES SLEEPERS ON STAGE

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Clusters of flying bombs dropped on southern England and the London area today and tonight the attacks continued. Foggy weather in France handicapped the aerial warfare against the robots, but anti-aircraft gunners on the coast downed some.

A motion picture theater was hit in the night. A number of persons sleeping on the stage were saved by a lowered safety curtain.

A Stockholm, Sweden, dispatch to the Daily Mail quoted an Austrian research worker who fled from Germany as saying 250,000 to 500,000 persons were making "secret weapons" for the Nazis.

CHURCHILL PAYS VISIT TO ITALIAN WAR THEATER

ROME, Italy, Aug. 11 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill has arrived in Italy. Allied headquarters announced tonight the prime minister's arrival, but did not disclose the purpose of his trip or how long he would stay. It was Churchill's first visit to the Italian war theater and followed closely a trip earlier this week to the Normandy beachhead.

RUSSIANS BREAK GERMAN LINE IN SOUTH ESTONIA

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Russia's 3d Baltic army smashed 15½ miles thru German lines on a 43 mile front in southern Estonia today in a fresh move to annihilate possibly 300,000 Nazi troops trapped in Estonia and Latvia.

A Moscow bulletin announced the capture of 200 localities in this drive, which is linked closely to the operations of three other soviet armies. These three armies have ringed two Nazi northern armies and are attempting to achieve a Baltic Stalingrad.

Among the places captured by the 3d Baltic army, under Gen. Ivan Maslennikov, was Petseri, 16 miles inside Estonia from the pre-war Russian frontier. It is a road and rail junction below Lake Peipus. From it lines run northwest 150 miles to Tallinn, Estonian capital, and southwest 140 miles to Riga, Latvian capital.

12 Divisions Hit, Say Nazis.

Berlin said before the Russian breakthru was announced that Maslennikov had hurled 12 divisions against the German lines.

Farther south in Latvia another Russian army advancing on Riga captured 50 localities, including Sunakste, 58 miles southeast of the Latvian capital. Moscow did not mention the progress of the 1st Baltic army, last reported within 20 miles of Riga on the south.

Northwest and west of Bialystok in northern Poland soviet units swept thru 250 villages in a drive aimed at the southern border of German East Prussia. In this action, which flared along a 100 mile front, Moscow reported gains up to 15 miles.

In western Lithuania, on the central and northern sectors of the East Prussian front, the Russians were fighting a gigantic war of attrition, Moscow dispatches said.

Gain Northeast of Warsaw.

In the sector northeast of Warsaw, immediately below the drive on the southern area of east Prussia, the Russians were said to have captured 100 villages in an attempt to smash enemy lines linking Warsaw and the German province.

On the Polish plains 100 miles south of Warsaw, where the Russians now hold a wedge in German lines west of the Vistula river, soviet units beat off German tank and infantry attacks and continued to fight to expand their bridgehead, Moscow said. In this area the Russians were reported within 20 miles of Kielce, axis communications stronghold linking Krakow and Warsaw.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Germany's war bulletin, broadcast yesterday, said:

"Between Warsaw and Augustow, the soviets resumed their attacks in several sectors with strong forces.

"All enemy attacks east of Warsaw were smashed. Northwest of Bialystok, the enemy entered our positions. He was checked by German counter-attacks.

"Southwest of Kaunas, the town of Vilkaviskis was recaptured.

"North of the Memel river, the soviets after severe losses discontinued their attacks. In six days of the battle of Raseiniai, our troops thus scored a full defensive success.

"On the Latvian front, the soviets attacked with numerous formations on a wide front. Most of their attacks were repulsed in counter-attacks. Only southwest of Lake Pskov, the enemy, by throwing in more than ten rifle divisions supported by tank and battleplane formations, broke into our positions. Heavy fighting is going on there."

WARSAW NAZIS TELL PATRIOTS TO YIELD OR DIE

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—The Germans have sent an ultimatum to Gen. Bor's underground troops holding parts of Warsaw that they must surrender or die, the Polish telegraph agency said today.

Bor radioed the Polish government in exile in London that unless help arrived "our heroic fight must soon come to a disastrous end." He is reported to need arms, ammunition, and artillery.

Coupled with the ultimatum to the underground troops was a Nazi order for the Polish population to evacuate Warsaw. All the able-bodied were instructed to enroll for labor with the Germans, the Polish telegraph agency said.

HOW 'WILD WEST' DASH WON TWO FRENCH CITIES

Midwest Doughboys Star in 8 Mile Race.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LE MANS, France, Aug. 11.—The spirit of Jeb Stuart whose cavalry raids struck terror in the Union lines rose up again along the green hedgerows of northern France this week and sent a band of hard fighting doughboys, many of whom were from the middle west, on the maddest dash of the campaign.

It carried these modern raiders mounted on 2½ ton trucks and jeeps on an eight mile slash thru and behind German lines, culminating in the capture of Mayenne and Le Mans.

Strike at Mayenne.

The Americans and their colonel, who once wore the crossed cannon of artillery on his collar, began their drive in trucks from St. Hilaire du Harcourt, seven miles southwest of Mortain. The column was as wide as the width of a truck. It had no place for flank guards, scouts, or reconnaissance other than the jeeps out front.

Just west of Mayenne the outfit detrucked. The colonel sent one battalion across country to hit the town from the northeast. The rest of his men moved as fast as they could walk south of the town about a mile. Some Germans saw them coming and pulled out. The Americans waited, trying to learn if more Germans were there, but time was pressing so the colonel took a chance.

Cross in Skiffs.

Alongside the bank of the deep, 75 yard wide Mayenne river were two old wooden skiffs. Only one had oars, but the soldiers knocked down a farmer's fence and used the slats to man the second skiff.

"If there had been any Germans on the opposite bank they could have done us a lot of damage," said the colonel, "and me, too. Later, after we had crossed, we found 10 in one house near-by but they showed no fight."

The battalion which had been sent swiftly toward the town from the northeast, Lt. Col. John Hamilton of Dallas, Ore., commanding, slipped in thru side streets while the Germans kept shooting at a hill in their rear.

About 100 yards from the Mayenne bridge, Hamilton turned his riflemen and tommy gunners loose in a wild west show. Before the Germans had time to set off the eight bombs which had been attached to the bridge, the Americans burst around a corner firing as they ran.

"Shooting from the hip," grinned the colonel, "wasn't very accurate but these wild bursts of fire drove the Germans back from the bridge and we wanted the bridge. Hamilton got it and 150 prisoners."

Nazi Troops Fooled.

The colonel established his command post in an old saloon outside the town. Then a truck parked outside and 45 Germans got out.

"They thought they still held Mayenne," the colonel explained, "and were just coming in to join the troops. We added them to our bag. It was like that all night, and we bagged six more trucks."

In the morning the drive toward Le Mans was resumed. The colonel's column headed southeast on a secondary road toward Monteseure and another column of equal size under a brigadier general shoved off east along a main highway.

"We had turned our trucks loose so we started out on foot," the colonel said.

The general's force ran into heavy resistance, but the colonel's column captured Monteseure and St. Suzanne. Then at 9 that night, with only a platoon of infantry and a platoon of anti-tank guns with him in St. Suzanne, the colonel learned the Germans had moved back into Monteseure and cut off his column except for Hamilton's force which had pushed on northeast.

Nazis Pour in Troops.

"It looked then as tho our neck had been stuck out too far," the colonel went on. "The Germans rushed up trucks of infantry to surround the small American force."

French resistance volunteers in the town came forward with their guns and the colonel got permission to turn a home into a fort.

"At 8 o'clock, just as the Germans were closing in and it looked as if this was our last stand," recalled the colonel, "around the corner came the first of Hamilton's tanks. We danced with joy. Hamilton had sent us 10 of his tanks and most of his doughboys riding on top of them. They turned loose on the Germans with machine guns and tommy guns, roaming up and down the streets and the battle was won."

Two hours later the last of the column arrived, having recaptured Monteseure, but the Germans meanwhile had moved in an 88 and while about 100 soldiers stood in the town square suddenly cut loose.

Drive Off Nazis Gunners.

All fell in the square. Our artillery drove the 88 away and the column started moving again. Then 15 German tanks suddenly loomed from the south, guarding the approach to Le Mans. But the colonel called on 155 mm. howitzers.

The artillery kept the tanks pinned down while the infantry jumped into trucks and raced ahead. By evening this mobile column had arrived at Bernay.

Instead of attacking head-on, Hamilton put one platoon on the south side of the town. It attacked, acting like a plunger in a well, and pushed the Germans north out of two of the streets, giving the rest of the column just enough space to speed on thru. When the column had passed the platoon cleaned up the Germans.

At 10 the next morning the colonel started his final drive for Le Mans heading southeast to make a juncture with the western highway to Laval at the town of Chau Fleur Notre Dame.

Smash Nazi Defenders.

Just as the first American tank approached the crossroad a big battery of German dual purpose 88 ack-ack [anti-aircraft fire] guns came tearing out from Le Mans. The tank crew waited until the first of the 25 vehicles was almost on it and then, from its cover, opened fire. The leading truck crashed and the entire column folded.

At the same time the general's force on the right flank was driving more Germans ahead of it into the Laval roads. With the general at one end of the gap and the colonel at the other knocking off those trying to escape, the eastward road was properly set up for the American air force.

On call, our fighter planes came sweeping down the road, catching scores more German vehicles, including tanks.

Loses Race to Le Mans.

At the moment all this was taking place the colonel learned that German division headquarters was less than a mile away south of the road, but he was so busy killing Germans he had no time to investigate. While he was busy rounding up 250 Germans who had escaped American bullets another column driving against light opposition from the southwest gained the first honors for entering Le Mans and the colonel's busy men didn't get into this capital of the Sarthe department until after midnight.

"Never have I seen the French so enthusiastic about our arrival," concluded the colonel. "In fact, they were a bit of a menace because they wanted to get my men drunk and we had fighting to do."

CHANNEL ISLES' NAZIS NOW CUT OFF BY ALLIES

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Germans on the channel island of Jersey and Guernsey have been cut off completely from France by the American grip on the Cherbourg and Brest peninsulas and the allied naval control of surrounding waters.

They have heavy guns, however, which they are using to invalidate, largely, the American-captured ports of St. Malo, on the Brittany peninsula, and Granville, in Normandy.

The islands were seized by the Germans a few days after the fall of France and turned into radar and anti-aircraft outposts.

BOOK PUTS FULL PEARL HARBOR BLAME ON F.D.R.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—The full blame for the American naval disaster at Pearl Harbor is charged to President Roosevelt in a book which purports to tell for the first time just what did happen to bring about the treacherous Japanese attack.

The book, "Washington Squirrel Cage," by Morris A. Bealle, one time editor of the magazine Plain Talk, claims to supply the missing link in the chain of circumstances leading to the greatest naval disaster in history.

The volume has the sponsorship of the American Democratic National committee, which is composed of Democrats pledged to save their country and party from a fourth term and the New Dealers. It satirizes the New Dealers and 11 years of New Deal futility.

Vigilance Called Off.

It charges President Roosevelt called off the army and navy's vigilant watch on all Japanese avenues of attack at the suggestion of the Japanese and thus paved the way for the surprise assault.

This information is attributed to a Democrat of high position, who allegedly received it from an unimpeachable source. The book carries a challenge to the President to disprove its charge by granting an immediate open court martial to Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and to Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, who now stand accused of full responsibility for the disaster.

In a chapter entitled "The Lapsus Watchus," Bealle recited the repeated warnings of the impending Jap attack. He recalled that as early as Jan. 27, 1941, Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Japan, reported the Japs were planning a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor. Grew also delivered warnings Sept. 30, Nov. 3 and Nov. 17 of that year.

Hull Aware of Danger.

Secretary of State Hull was also aware of the danger of war. On Nov. 25 and Nov. 26 Hull warned the President of the critical nature of Japanese-American relations and disclosed to British Ambassador Halifax that diplomatic negotiations had ended and the matter had passed into the hands of the army and navy.

"It is a known fact that some sort of instructions went out from Washington Nov. 27, 1941, to the army and navy commanders in Hawaii," the book states. "As a result of these instructions, the defenses of the island were taken off the No. 3 alert [ready for anything] and put on the No. 1 alert [watch out for acts of sabotage within the island only].

"The link in this picture, which had been missing since the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, was supplied by a Democrat of high position and long standing in Washington — one who was a voting and working Democrat when Franklin Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie didn't know what they were. His information came from a source that is hardly impeachable and it fits into the rest of the known facts like the last scrap of a jigsaw puzzle.

F. D. R. Called Gullible.

"The army and navy had been heeding the warnings of Ambassador Grew for weeks and maintaining a close watch on all avenues of attack by the Japanese. Baron Nomura and his partner came to Washington in November and the first thing they did was to tell our gullible President that this alertness was irritating Japanese people and making difficult the task of Tojo's plenipotentiaries.

"Nomura told Mr. Roosevelt that this close watch was embarrassing them, it indicated suspicion and ill feeling toward Japan, and that if the 'watch were lowered' and an attitude of confidence in Japan displayed, their task of averting the war would be much easier.

"History's biggest sucker swallowed the bait and lowered our watch, after telling Mr. Churchill that he was 'babying Japan along' and the American people that 'every man is at his battle station from Singapore to Honolulu.'

Churchill Victory.

"Then the Jap rats struck, and Mr. Churchill had accomplished his purpose of getting the vast industrial resources and cannon fodder of the United States openly into England's war against Germany.

"The ease with which the incredibly naive Mr. Roosevelt was fooled gave the Japs a distorted picture of the American people. It made them unduly cocky. That was apparently why a bombastic Japanese admiral boasted that he would dictate the terms of peace in Mr. Roosevelt's own boudoir.

"Had our Hawaiian forces still been on the No. 3 alert, divided command or not, they could have annihilated the attacking Japanese planes before they reached their objective."

The book labeled as a "whitewash" the Pearl Harbor report of the commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Roberts. It asserted Rep. Short [R., Mo.] charged that the report was doctored at the White House and that no official denial of this charge was ever made.

Bealle declared that "if the President persists in suppressing the facts of Pearl Harbor until after the election, that will be all the proof intelligent Americans need that our congressional information is substantially correct."

LONDON, Aug. 11.—As part of the new total war effort in Germany there will be no more funny cartoons in the newspapers, said Siegfried von Glen over the German radio today.

$25,000 EGGS END TRIP THAT SMELLS OF WFA

One million two hundred ninety-six thousand eggs, 25 thousand dollars worth, which the war food administration has been knocking about the country in freight transit since May, were placed under a seizure order here yesterday by the Illinois department of agriculture.

Zean Gassmann

Zean Gassmann, superintendent of the division of foods and dairies, said that the eggs were infested with maggots and had deteriorated so badly that they can't even be salvaged for hog fodder.

Meanwhile, Gassmann added, the Chicago office of the WFA is awaiting a request for a destruction order which must come from Washington. The eggs, contained in six refrigerator cars, are on a siding at the Chicago and North Western terminal at Grand av. and Jefferson st.

End of a Smelly Trip.

The story of the movement of this consignment of eggs reads like a politician's itinerary. Gassmann said the report showed they were purchased in Minnesota on the surplus food commodity market by the WFA. After that they were shipped to Cleveland, O., for dry warehouse storage, thence they were consigned to a Missouri egg breaking establishment. For some reason they weren't wanted in Missouri, so they were shunted around until they landed in Omaha, Neb. They popped up next in St. Paul, Minn., back in their home state, and finally, in a sequel that smells, they wound up in Chicago.

Gassmann said that because of their condition the eggs must be dumped and burned when the destruction order is received.

Freight Bill is $4,200.

Gassmann said he was informed that during the series of cross-country jaunts a freight bill of $4,200 had piled up against the government.

Altogether approximately 108,000 dozen eggs are accounted for in the consignment, said Gassmann. The eggs purportedly were bought by the WFA in the surplus foods program under which the government paid farmers a so-called support charge of around 26 or 27 cents a dozen.

Gassmann said he was told the eggs had been shipped to Chicago after a company had agreed to take those portions which could be salvaged at 15 cents a dozen but that the firm was unable to find any salvage in the consignment.

WOMAN, 35, DIES IN RIVER WHEN BOAT OVERTURNS

William Schreiber, 37, of 4144 Berkeley av., reported to police early today that Virginia Bassell, 35, drowned in the Chicago river near Lake st., when a dinghy in which they were riding capsized. Schreiber said he dove several times, but could not find her body. Coast Guardsmen also made a futile search. Schreiber said he and the woman launched the boat from the yacht Hyac, anchored in the river near Franklin st. Schreiber said the yacht is owned by Richard B. McGarvey.

HEROES SUCH AS THESE WON BIAK ISLE FROM JAPS

Chicagoland Men Among Victorious Yanks.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BIAK ISLAND [Delayed].—Biak Island, off the north coast of New Guinea, was won by the individual acts of individual men. Here are some of the heroes:

With mortar shells falling all around, a Chicago doctor, Capt. Seymour R. Katz, 5540 Kimball av., was critically wounded. Yet he was so busy treating wounded soldiers that he refused to treat himself. He died still saving the lives of others.

When a corporal in his platoon was wounded, Lt. Robert R. Du Pont, 5346 N. Winthrop av., Chicago, crawled thru enemy fire to rescue the corporal, and with gunfire protected a litterbearer evacuating the wounded man. The litterbearer was wounded, however, and Du Pont then pulled him and the corporal to safety.

Helps Put Out Fire.

A Jap plane started a huge fire in a Jap dump near the American beachhead. For hours Corp. Edwart Zuperku, 9649 Irving Park rd., Schiller Park, Ill., and Pvt. William Thuriak, Youngstown, O., cut fire lanes with a bulldozer and pushed supplies from the fire's reach amid exploding shells, bombs, and gasoline drums.

To save a wounded man, Corp. Albert Truax, Muncie, Ind., placed him on a jeep and drove thru No Man's land with Jap rifle bullets splattering around him.

Hearing the Japs organize a bayonet attack, Pvt. Robert Helphrey, Union, Ia., held his fire until the Japs were seven yards away. Then he opened fire with his machine gun, killing 30 and routing the surprised attackers.

Hacks Jap to Death.

Capt. Walter Moore, Baker, Ore., was sleeping in a foxhole when four Japs attacked another one near-by. The soldier there killed two before a third Jap bayoneted him. He called for help and started to run, a fourth Jap chasing him with a sword. Moore intercepted the Jap and when his gun jammed beat the Jap on the head with the butt, then grabbed a machete near-by and slashed him to death. The next day Moore ground a razor edge on the machete, took it to bed with him in his foxhole and in his sleep turned onto it, cutting himself so severely he was sent to the hospital.

Thru mortar bursts and sniper fire Corp. Leroy Hayden, Sterling, Ill., carried 25 pounds of TNT in a drum to a cave in which some Japs were hidden. The TNT eliminated them. Sgt. Hugh Morrison, Mount Carmel, Ill., crept thru heavy fire to bring machine gun ammunition to his squad a few minutes before a Jap counter-attack, which was repulsed.

Killed in Ambush.

While driving a truck, Pvt. 1st Class Earl Kueder, Troy, Ill., was ambushed. All the men with him were killed outright. Kueder, altho dying, told the Yanks in another truck that he was all right, refusing to let them imperil themselves to save him.

Fully exposing himself, Lt. Col. Archibald Roosevelt, son of the former President, walked to a tank to point out a machine gun holding up the advance and then stood by to correct the fire.

Pvt. 1st Class Frank Jankowski, Minonk, Ill., kept his machine gun going altho wounded in the head. While moving the gun to a new position, he was again wounded, this time fatally, but he set up the gun and put an assistant in charge before going for aid. It was then too late.

Corp. Hayden Conway, 3359 Western blvd., Chicago, a litterbearer, exposed himself to Jap bullets many times to aid and move wounded men. "He was instrumental in saving their lives," his commander said. All day Corp. Harry Sayka, Gary, Ind., set atop a high ridge completely exposed because there the radio reception was best and his radio was the only communication his outfit had.

Flames Silence Enemy.

Boldly, Sgt. Milan Peel, Kokomo, Ind., walked up to a cave with a flame thrower. "He effectually silenced the enemy."

Thirteen Japs in a suicidal attack charged a regimental command post. Pvt. Lester Norman, 3655 Palmer av., Chicago, on duty as a relief telephone operator, saw them, killed one, and routed the others before the camp was alerted.

While hunting a jetty site, Pvt. Edward Karnatz, 5869 Lansing av., Chicago, ran into four Japs in a pillbox. He killed two with grenades and kept the others down until more troops arrived. Pvt. Robert Goorsky, 1644 N. California av., Chicago, kept telephone wires operative when broken by mortar fire.

CHARGES BRITISH CENSORS HIDE BURMA FIASCO

Radio Correspondent Assails Officials.

New York, Aug. 11 [Special].—British censorship has so suppressed and concealed news of the allied campaign in Burma that the world has no conception of how badly we have fared there, declares Leslie Nichols, Mutual Broadcasting System correspondent from Cairo, Egypt, who is now in New York.

Newsmen coming out of India complain that the rigid and unimaginative British censorship of Calcutta stymied all their efforts to convey some idea of the seriousness of the situation thru which we were going, he says.

Cites Marauder Story.

"The story Aug. 5 from Kandy, Ceylon, which told of the demoralization of Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's Marauders during the siege of Myitkyina more than two months before was but an example of how America has been denied news of allied difficulties in the Burma-India theater," he declared.

"The Burma campaign started badly when the Japanese caught allied forces off balance and still tied up with problems of organization, and it is just now beginning to get on its feet. Meanwhile British censors had suppressed the news far beyond any requirements of military expediency or morale," says Nichols, adding:

"The British are willing to have correspondents shout paeans of praise, but during a critical situation it is hard to get anything by them."

Honored at Press Luncheon.

Nichols, who was a Mutual network correspondent for two and a half years after going to Cairo in 1937 to develop an Egyptian staff for the journalism department of the American university there, was a recent guest of honor at a press luncheon here.

RESULTS HAILED IN DOUBLE-BLOW BY SUPER FORTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—B-29 Super Fortresses chalked up "good" results in their two-fold smash yesterday at Japanese war industry in Sumatra and the Nipponese homeland, the 20th bomber command reported today. It said three of the aerial giants are missing and a fourth made an emergency landing at a forward allied base in China.

A "medium" force of the great planes was used in each attack. One hit Japan's greatest source of oil, the Pladjoe refinery at Palembang, Sumatra. The other struck at industrial targets at the shipbuilding center of Nagasaki on Kyushu, one of the enemy's home islands.

New York, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Japanese Domei agency directed an English language wireless dispatch to North America today reporting that the area around Canton, China, had been the target for an "attempted raid" Thursday night. "The enemy warplanes fled without being able to enter the city or its vicinity," Domei said.

CHINESE ADVANCE IN NEW DRIVE ON JAP BASE IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 11 (AP).—Chinese troops and Kachin [Burmese] levies have driven seven miles south of captured Myitkyina in a new push toward Bhamo, Japanese base on the Irrawaddy river 73 miles farther south, allied headquarters announced today.

[A Chinese spokesman in Chungking said the Japanese were preparing for the coming battle of Bhamo by rushing reinforcements there from Malaya.]

At the same time allied troops in another north Burma drive were fighting more than 17 miles south of Mogaung on the Mogaung-Mandalay railroad, having pressed on thru captured Taungni. To the west allied forces had all but completed clearing the last Japanese invaders out of India, having chased them down the Tiddim road to a point within 10 miles of the Burma-India frontier.

Quit, Two Generals Tell Germans.

MOSCOW, Aug. 11 (AP).—Two captured German generals in signed statements in the soviet press called upon the Germans today to end the war. They are Lt. Gen. Von Kurowski and Maj. Gen. Lindeman, who said more than 30 German divisions are doomed to extermination because of an "irresponsible Hitler strategy." The statement professed agreement with a manifesto that 60 of their fellow generals, repudiating Hitler, were reported to have signed on July 22.

GUAMIANS LOOK TO FUTURE BUILT BY HARD WORK

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUAM, Aug. 7 [Delayed].—The rehabilitation of Guam's newly liberated civilians apparently is going to be a simpler task than some expected.

The average Guamian seems eager to do something for himself. About 6,000 natives have returned to their homes in areas swept clear of the enemy to take up life where it was interrupted by the Japanese invasion nearly three years ago. They represent nearly a fourth of the native population.

Guamians' loyalty to America in the main is unquestioned. A native estimated 99½ per cent of them are 100 per cent loyal. They speak our language and hold our ideals of individual initiative and property rights.

They Leap to the Job.

The more intelligent Guamians, of whom there is no small number, take an interest not only in their individual welfare but in that of their island. Lacking the hopeless lethargy of peoples held all their lives at the barest subsistence level, they are spontaneously resisting the temptation to relax after many months of labor and sit back and let Uncle Sam do it.

One senses that in the cheerful alacrity with which working parties of civilians apply themselves to assigned tasks. These volunteers, some still bandaged from wounds suffered in the battle to free the island, put more enthusiasm into cleanup labor than some troops who work as if they would rather fight.

One native voiced a hope that the new, friendly civil administration "will not baby us to death."

"If you try to do too much for the natives, it may backfire," he warned. "If we find that we can get along without hard work we may lose the habit.

Adversity Teaches a Lesson.

"Life under the Japanese taught us that we can be self-supporting. We found that we did not need electricity. Our women shredded cocoanut meat, squeezed the juice from it, boiled out the water and gave us not only cooking and body rubbing liquid but fuel for lamps.

"We discovered that bamboo poles make a good building framework and braided cocoanut fronds an excellent thatch. I can show you many shelters built without a nail, thanks to the use of vegetable fibers twisted into rope.

"We rediscovered that enough food and medicine can be produced here to keep us reasonably healthy, that we can tan skins or cut wood for sandals, and weave fabrics for adequate clothing.

Hopes for Wise Leaders.

"We know the war against the Japs did not end with our liberation and don't expect our advancing army to drop everything and tuck us into our beds. These fighting men have much hard work ahead, and so have we. I hope God gives our leaders the wisdom to handle us wisely."

A notice to citizens, signed by the 3d amphibious corps commander, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the marines said in part:

"You are our own people, but much that we should like to do for you cannot be done because of the military situation. Your proud tradition of loyalty to the United States, however, leaves no doubt of your whole hearted coöperation. Such assistance can only aid in the early restoration of peace to the island."

JAPS EXECUTE THREE YANKS, WAR CAPTIVES

Claim They Escaped, Slew Policeman.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Japanese have executed three American prisoners of war on a charge that they killed a police officer after escaping from a prison camp in Manchuria.

Frank Meringolo.

Corp. Paliotti.

The navy, disclosing details today, said the Japanese foreign office had relayed the information thru the American Red Cross.

The sentence of death, imposed by a military court, was carried out on July 31, 1943. Those executed, the navy said, were Marine Sgt. Joe B. Chastain, 24, son of Starling E. Chastain, Waco, Tex.; Marine Corp. Victor Paliotti, 23, son of Mrs. Julia Paliotti, Cranston, R. I., and Seaman Frank Meringolo, 21, son of Demetrio Meringolo, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Japanese gave this version of the case:

Held captive in a Manchurian prison camp, the trio escaped on June 21, 1943, and headed for the Russian border. For 11 days they sought to get out of Japanese territory, but finally lack of food made them desperate.

They halted a police inspector and asked for something to eat, asserting that they were German flyers whose plane had crashed.

The inspector and two Mongol companions insisted upon seeing the crashed plane.

"En route, according to the Japanese version," the navy said, "one of the prisoners killed the inspector with a kitchen knife and another seriously wounded one of the Mongols.

YANKS CONDUCT HUMAN RABBIT HUNT ON GUAM

THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS HDQ., Guam, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—(AP)—[Via Navy Radio].—Fighting on Guam developed into a human rabbit hunt today after Maj. Gen. Roy Geiger officially pronounced the island "secure."

Thruout the northern reaches of Guam, leathernecks and doughboys spread out to beat the bushes like country kids on a Saturday rabbit hunt; and they were just as happy, knowing the hard work of battle was finished. All they needed to complete the picture was hound dogs. Instead, they had trained Dobermann-Pinschers to help flush the hiding Japanese.

1,000 Japs at Large.

It was estimated that more than a thousand enemy soldiers, some alone, some in small groups, were at large in the hills north of Agana. It may take several weeks to wipe them all out. But the unshaved, unbathed American troops, still wearing the sweaty, dirt stained green utility uniforms of combat, were making headway.

Army Planes Raid Iwo.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 11 (AP).—Heavy bombers of the 7th army air force bombed Iwo Island in the Volcano group Wednesday in the first full scale heavy strike from newly won air fields in the Marianas. Iwo is 750 miles from Tokyo and 725 miles northwest of conquered Saipan.

The Liberators dropped 47 tons of bombs on the Iwo air field. It was the first heavy bomber strike on this target by the army.

A dive bombing attack was made the same day on Mili atoll in the Marshall Islands by more than 100 planes of the 4th marine aircraft wing.

3 JAP CAPTIVES IN HOSPITAL TRY HARA-KIRI; FAIL

Denver, Colo., Aug. 11 (AP).—Lt. Col. D. H. Kelly, executive officer at Fitzsimons general hospital, said three Japanese prisoners of war who were being treated at the institution for tuberculosis attempted to commit hari kiri today.

"They cut their wrists, necks and stomachs," said Col. Kelly, formerly a Des Moines, Ia., physician. "However, we stopped them before each finished his job and we believe each will recover." Two are noncommissioned officers and one a private.

Hoboken Pier Is Destroyed by 4 Million Dollar Fire

New York, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—[Special].—A fire which raged out of control for hours, fed by exploding drums of inflammable liquids, destroyed Pier 4, Hoboken, N. J., a landmark of New York harbor where the Leviathan was loaded in the first World War, spread thru hundreds of feet of a 5 block long office and warehouse building and damaged two other piers last night. The fire was announced as under control early this morning.

Officials at the scene said the damage would run into millions of dollars and hamper loading of war transports. One estimate placed damage at $4,000,000.

A number of coast guardsmen and workmen suffered smoke poisoning and burns. Eight of the injured were taken to St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken.

Explosions Mark Blaze.

The blaze was marked by a series of explosions as 50 gallon drums of oxaline and nitro-cellulose and other chemicals burst from the heat, sending roaring columns of flame 50 feet above the roofs of the piers.

The fire started in one of three lighters which were loading the drums onto a Liberty ship moored at the pier. Workmen and members of the crew of the lighter, trapped by the explosions and fire, leaped into the harbor to escape.

Altho other drums were thrown overboard into the Hudson river, the flames spread, setting fire to the two other lighters and endangering the ship. The three burning lighters, the Liberty ship and other cargo vessels tied up or moored near-by were towed to midstream out of the danger zone.

One Lighter Destroyed.

While fire companies and fire boats were fighting the pier blaze, Coast Guard boats fought the flames on the lighters in the river. One lighter was destroyed, the other two damaged. None of the other endangered vessels were damaged, naval authorities said.

Thirty pieces of fire fighting apparatus were brought from Manhattan to aid New Jersey and Coast Guard fire companies in battling the blaze.

Firemen from the surrounding area in New Jersey and from New York city, volunteer emergency workers and 900 Coast Guardsmen from the metropolitan area battled the flames, but they spread along the 955 foot pier, one of the largest on the New Jersey side of the river, to the three story office and warehouse building and to an open pier to the south.

Packed with Merchandise.

With a block of the office building burning, and the second pier afire, the movement of the flames changed and started north, spreading to the third pier. The concrete floors covering creosoted timbers of the three piers were packed with huge quantities of merchandise and war material awaiting shipment overseas.

All available fireboats from municipalities, the Coast Guard, and the railroads in the port of New York were mobilized at the scene, a phalanx of them moving to within 50 feet of the burning structures to pour tons of water on the flames.

HIT HALMAHERA, STEPPING STONE TO PHILIPPINES

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—(AP)—American planes in a double barreled strike at Halmahera Island, southern guardian of the Philippines, sank or damaged six freighters and plastered two of the enemy's main air bases, headquarters reported today. Heavy bombers swept over the Galela and Lolobata air fields.

The aerial arrow toward the Philippines also struck a new objective when patrol planes seriously damaged a 2,000 ton freighter near the Talaud Islands, within 200 miles of Mindanao.

Second Cruiser, Carrier to be Launched Aug. 20.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 11.—The 27,000 ton aircraft carrier Antietam and the 13,000 ton cruiser Los Angeles will be christened Aug. 20 at the Philadelphia navy yard simultaneously with the christening of the 13,000 ton cruiser Chicago, Rear Adm. M. F. Draemel announced today.

Adm. Draemel.

The event will be the largest christening or launching of fighting ships in American history and probably in the world, navy officials said.

The two cruisers were paid for by bond purchases of residents of Chicago and Los Angeles, Cal. Chicagoans purchased 47 million dollars in war bonds in February and March, 1943, to finance the ship.

Built at Same Time.

The three vessels were built simultaneously in adjoining drydocks, so the customary launchings will be dispensed with. Instead, water will be let into the docks the day of the christening and the ships floated. However, the christening ceremonies will be climaxed with the traditional smashing of a bottle of champagne on the prow of each ship.

The Chicago will be christened by Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of Chicago's mayor. Speeches by Mayor Kelly, Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles, whose wife will christen the Los Angeles, and Sen. Tydings [D., Md.] are scheduled.

The new Chicago is the third navy vessel to bear the name of America's second city and will replace a 10,000 ton cruiser of the same name which was torpedoed by the Japanese while convoying reinforcements to Guadalcanal in January, 1943. Her loss spurred Chicagoans into setting what was then a record for war bond sales, so that another Chicago could speedily join America's navy.

Will Be of Latest Design.

No official statistics on the new Chicago, other than her weight and the fact she will mount 8 inch guns, have been released by the navy, but it has been announced she will embody the latest developments in cruiser design, including "considerable" anti-aircraft armament.

The cruiser Los Angeles was preceded in the navy by a tanker which served in World War I., and the dirigible Los Angeles, the former German ZR-3, which has been scrapped. The only other Antietam in the navy was a sloop-of-war built shortly after the Civil war.

Argentine Censorship of Newspapers Ends

Sisters Found Guilty in Treason Trial

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Florence Shivze Otani, Mrs. Billie Shitara Tanigoshi, and Mrs. Tsuruko Wallace (left to right), sisters found guilty in Denver, Colo., treason trial.

3 SISTERS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY IN TREASON CASE

Face Maximum Term of Two Years.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Shitara sisters, Japanese-American women branded by a United States District court jury as conspirators who plotted to commit treason, waited in the Denver county jail today for Judge J. Foster Symes to sentence them.

A jury of men deliberated behind locked doors for 10 hours, then voted to convict Mrs. Tsuruko Wallace, 35; Mrs. Florence Shivze Otani, 33, and Mrs. Billie Shitara Tanigoshi, 32, on the second count of an indictment charging treason and conspiracy to commit treason. The government alleged they aided in the escape of two German prisoners of war.

Possible Death Sentence.

The women, who had been evacuated from Inglewood, Cal., to the Granada relocation center at Amache, Colo., were acquitted of the treason charge, under which they had faced a possible death sentence. Now the maximum punishment that may be imposed upon them is two years in federal prison and $10,000 fine.

Judge Symes did not indicate when he will sentence the sisters. He allowed Defense Atty. Kenneth Robinson three days in which to file a new trial motion. Whether the convictions will be appealed was undecided.

One Asks Question.

The sisters, two of whom are mothers, received the verdict without flinching. Then Mrs. Wallace, wife of a white shipyard worker in California, demanded:

"How come they find us guilty of conspiracy when we are not guilty of treason?"

The two prisoners are Heinrich Haider and Herman Loescher, both 31, who fought for Rommel in North Africa. The government charged that the three sisters aided the prisoners in their break last October from the Trinidad, Colo., interment center. They were seized soon after their escape. They testified for the government in the four day trial.

100,000 EXPECTED TO ATTEND NEGRO BOND RALLY TODAY

More than 100,000 Chicago Negroes are expected to attend a war bond rally today in Washington park, sponsored jointly by the treasury department and the Chicago Defender, Negro newspaper. The goal of the day's sales has been set at a million dollars.

The gathering will be preceded by a parade on Michigan av. from 33d st. to 55th st., then east to the park. Led by Brig. Gen. William E. Gunther of the 6th service command, the parade will include military bands and contingents of Negro officers of the army and navy, as well as seamen and privates, and a group of WACs from Fort Sheridan.

At the rally the entertainment program will be led by Lena Horne, Hollywood singing star, and Duke Ellington, orchestra leader. Among speakers will be Mayor Kelly, Civil Service Commissioner James B. Cashin, Federal Judge Herman E. Moore, George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the park district, and John H. Sengstacke, president of the Defender.

OPA SCOTCHES RUMOR OF NEW COFFEE RATION

Those rumors that coffee is going to be rationed and prices increased are strictly that—just rumor, the office of price administration said yesterday. Supplies are plentiful and there is adequate profit for all handlers, price and ration officials said. The rumors are put out every now and then, they said, by "trade sources" who recall that when coffee was first rationed sales jumped sharply, but slumped when it was taken off the list. And summer is the slow season for coffee sales, the OPA agents added.

DROWNING BLAMED ON SQUALL.

Orson A. Towle, 25, of 516 Linden av., Wilmette, a dentist's technician, was drowned Aug. 5 when he fell into the lake from a small boat catwalk during a squall, it was determined at a coroner's inquest yesterday.

OPA OFFICIALS APPROVE B GAS RATIONS BOOST

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 [Special].—Gasoline rations for B book holders will be increased to 825 miles a month from the present 325, 400, and 470, under plans approved today by national and regional officials of the office of price administration, it was learned tonight.

The plans were said to have been approved by Price Administrator Chester Bowles before being submitted to the officials.

The only matters left undecided, it was reported, were the effective date, the method of applying the increase, and the question whether to grant the full 825 miles a month to the Atlantic and Pacific coast areas, where B motorists get 325 and 400 miles a month, respectively. Those in the middle west get 470.

No Boost for A Books.

The increase could be applied by issuing more coupons or by raising the value of outstanding B coupons.

Drivers with A books will not benefit by the increase, nor will the rations of C drivers go up if the proposed plan is adopted.

The suggested B card increase was made possible by a "winning battle against the black market," OPA officials said, and will be "effective very soon."

The move, it was said, was in response to pressure from civilian groups, particularly firms employing salesmen, and from within the OPA. It came at the suggestion of Col. Bryon Houston, former rationing executive for the OPA, who resigned two months ago to return to the army.

The increase is expected to cut illegal gas sales still further, OPA officials said, because "a large part of black market withdrawals has come from B card holders."

Make Living by Travel.

They explained that B drivers for the most part are salesmen and others who make their living by automobile travel or who must use their cars in their work. Many of them, they said, have had their income cut as much as one-half thru inability to call on customers or to make deliveries.

"It was felt that it was no particular hardship for a man or his family to take a cut in pleasure driving," one OPA chief said. "It meant a curtailment of recreation only, which is not a serious war time sacrifice. There has always been enough gas available for war plant workers and they have had all they needed. So A and C ration are not to be increased.

"It was the B card driver who took the severest jolt of all, and in many instances it has been unfair to him. That was why the entire increase gained thru black market savings has been made available to him."

COVER OF CLOUDS KEEPS MERCURY 'DOWN' TO 96.1°

High of 85° Forecast Today; Corn 'Firing.'

For a second time this month Chicago yesterday escaped a forecast temperature of 100 degrees when a heavy cloud cover interposed itself, breaking the direct sun rays. The day's high of 96.1 degrees was recorded at 5:45 p. m. Winds ranging from 20 to 23 miles an hour also helped keep the mercury down.

A measure of relief for today, with a high of about 85 degrees, was promised by Forecaster H. A. Downs. A decrease in humidity, which yesterday ranged as high as 68 per cent, adding to the city's discomfort, also was forecast.

Deputy Marshal Imprisoned.

One of Chicago's hottest spots yesterday was the United States marshal's lockup in the federal building, where heat expanded a cell lock, imprisoning Deputy Marshal Clarence Hoffman with seven of his charges. After 30 minutes of tinkering, other deputy marshals smashed the lock with a hammer and released Hoffman.

A survey of the central western crop situation showed that corn is in peril in several areas. The corn belt is in its 11th week of drouth. The situation is regarded as much more serious than is indicated by the official rain figures, which show a deficiency of only .70 inch for the year. Corn is "firing"—the stalks turning brown and sere near the base. This results in subnormal nourishment for the corn kernels.

For practical purposes, the drouth is much more acute because there was an excess of rain several months ago, followed by three months of deficiency. From February thru May there were excesses of precipitation ranging from .45 to 1.95 inches. Deficiencies for June, July, and August have been .30, 1.50, and 1.04, respectively.

Rains Help Two Areas.

In all the corn belt, northern Illinois and southern Iowa are in the best condition, because of intermittent rains that have enabled corn to hold its own.

Central and southern Illinois corn and soybean crops were reported "poor to deteriorating." Many counties have had less than two inches of rain in two months. The normal fall would have been around seven inches for the period.

After an excess of rain earlier in the year, the last three months have been so dry that the corn belt is suffering from drouth.

Grasshoppers and chinch bugs, which thrive in hot, dry weather, have caused considerable damage. Near Highland, Ill., 260 acres of corn, soybeans, and alfalfa were reported stripped by the pests. Hay cuttings elsewhere were described as short and thin.

Because of pasture damage, Indiana milk production was reported 25 per cent off for the week.

In Chicago, more than 70,000 persons visited the forest preserves seeking relief from the heat. Swimmers at the preserves' three pools numbered 6,000.

The overcast which helped keep down the temperature also kept several thousand persons from the park district's beaches. Yesterday's crowds were estimated at 125,000 persons, against Thursday's 400,000.

Paris Curfew Ordered by German Command

LONDON, Aug. 12 [Saturday]—(AP).—Greater Paris has been placed under an 11:15 p. m. curfew, beginning tonight, by order of the German command, the Paris radio said today.

PRESIDENT HAILS U. S. TROOPS ON ALEUTIANS ISLE

Talks About Dispensary.

Lt. Richards, called to the side of the President's automobile, answered questions concerning operation of the dispensary.

The President asked her if she was happy here and she said she was.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party, which included Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the commander in chief, came north in one of the navy's cruisers.

The Presidential party, in addition to Adm. Leahy, included Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician; Major Gen. Edwin M. Watson, military aide, and Rear Adm. Wilson Brown, naval aide.

Mr. Roosevelt, wearing a gray suit and tan shirt and sweater with black navy tie, came ashore shortly after tugs had brought the cruiser alongside the dock. His brown fedora hat was turned up in front.

His black Scotch terrier, Fala, was along.

The Aleutians gave the visitors a sample of weather of the mildest sort common at this season—fog and rain, driven by shifting winds; with occasional fleeting sunshine and glimpses of blue sky.

Ignoring the rain and the mud underfoot, the military turned out in the biggest dress up day, of navy blue and army brown, in the history of the base.

Officially the President's visit was a secret. But soldiers and sailors, instructed to police up their areas, guessed several days ago that a visitor was coming.

Some speculated it would be Mrs. Roosevelt.

The doubt was removed for the thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines, and civilian workers as they lined the roads and watched the President's car pass by.

Mr. Roosevelt left the warship at 10 a. m. and did not finish his tour until 4 p. m. Except for the time out for lunch, he was on the go almost the entire time.

"Just on a Vacation."

At the end, he passed before long ranks of white and Negro troops, drawn up at attention in warehouses of the army quartermaster's depot. The warehouses protected the soldiers from the rain.

No newspaper reporters accompanied the President's party.

War correspondents, on assignment with Adm. Fletcher's North Pacific force, followed the inspection tour and attended the luncheon. Secret service men said, unofficially, that the President was just on a vacation.

THE QUESTION.

What is the longest you have gone without sleep and why?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Renee Mack, office worker, 6136 Ellis av.—It was on a camping trip with friends. We left at 4:30 in the morning, drove all day, and arrived at our destination that night. We sat up all night telling jokes and stories, then went on a long hike. We prowled the woods all the next night and went home the next day.

Mrs. Paul Robinson, housewife, Rockford—The longest I've ever stayed up without getting any sleep is one night and the following day. My husband and I were out late and I had to catch a bus at 3:30 a. m., so I just stayed up until my bus came. I wasn't the least bit tired next day, but the following day I was really sleepy.

Cyrus Titus, Trilla, Ill.—I used to drive a stock truck in civilian life. The longest trip I made was more than two days and three nights. I drove the cattle to a city, unloaded and drove back. I went to bed at 4 in the afternoon and didn't wake up until 6 next afternoon. Even then I was tired.

Corp. Raymond W. Hines, Fort Worth, Tex.—After working all day Friday I had to go on guard duty at night. Saturday, I had a week-end furlough so I left for Texas. I didn't sleep all day Saturday, Saturday night, Sunday, or Sunday night and arrived in camp Monday morning to go to work again.

Mrs. Henry Isner, housewife, Winthrop Harbor, Ill.—When one of my daughters was 3 years old she had scarlet fever. I sat up with her for several days and nights. We finally took her to a hospital where she died. I didn't get any sleep for so long I was on the verge of collapse. It was a terrible experience.

Mrs. Milton Korth, housewife, Cambridge, Wis.—My husband had been home on furlough and I accompanied him back to camp. We left at 6 p. m. in our car. When we were about two hours from nowhere we got a flat tire. It took all night to drive 150 miles. When we arrived it was morning.

CAPT. HARRISON FINDS DOOR CAN HIDE MURDERER

Miss in Drake Bathroom Called Miracle.

berg interrupted. "Just a minute, lieutenant," he said. "You promised to let her see her mother go to the hospital."

At that time Quinn was called from the room. He says the question was not pressed again.

Considerable speculation has arisen over Quinn's account of his brief interrogation of Mrs. Goodbody.

I have spent many hours examining the physical factors involved in the shooting.

For instance, I have measured the area behind the bathroom door. The area is bounded on the east by a wall section, on the north by a wall section, on the west by the end of the bathtub, and on the south by the door—when open, or the hinge line of the door. The area measures 28½ inches from the end of the tub to the east wall, and 37 inches from the north wall to the hinge line of the door.

Ironing Board Behind Door.

The police record shows, and Drake House Detective Tierney agrees, that immediately after the shooting police looked behind the door and found in this space these articles:

A standard sized ironing board, with a loose sheet draped over it, the board being, with rack, 4 feet 9½ inches long, and 5½ to 14½ inches wide. It was a collapsible type board. It stood on one end, directly in the center and against the east wall section.

It was behind this door, in the space which already contained an ironing board and an iron and electric cord, that the unidentified woman assassin is said to have hidden herself.

Could the killer hide there?

She could.

Finds She Would Be Hidden.

Would she be hidden from the view of a person sitting on the toilet chair?

She would.

But before I discuss this point, I suggest you examine the accompanying photographs. Also let me point out that the distance from the chair of the toilet to the center of this all-imporant hiding place behind the door is 5 feet 7 inches.

I have just said that a person seated on the toilet chair might have missed seeing a person hiding behind the door. That is not guess work. Two young women, of the approximate build of Mrs. Goodbody and the given build of the assassin, assisted in an experiment.

One sat on the toilet chair. The other stood behind the door, with the ironing board, the iron, and the electric cord also there. The girl posing as the murderess wore no coat. A Persian lamb coat is not form fitting and naturally would have given additional bulk to the slayer. The bathroom light was on, as it was on the night of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Williams; and the light was brilliant, not dim.

Shower Curtain Vital Factor.

Could the person on the toilet chair see the person hiding behind the door?

It depended on the position of the shower curtain attached to the bathtub. I found that when the curtain was drawn, the person on the toilet chair could not see the person behind the door. I found that when the curtain was open, or pushed back in folds against the wall, the person on the chair could see the person hiding behind the door.

Was that curtain drawn or open?

Lt. Quinn, the only police official who publicly expressed doubt of the existence of the third person in the room, as he so testified twice at the coroner's inquest, recalls that the curtain was pulled around, or so partially drawn that Mrs. Goodbody's view of the space behind the door was obstructed.

House Detective Disagrees.

However, House Detective Tierney, who was in the murder room before Quinn got there, pushed the shower curtain half way back, or open, when asked to show what position the curtain was in when he arrived.

If Tierney is correct, Mrs. Goodbody could have seen the person lurking behind the door.

I'd like to point out another detail. There is an opening between the inside edge of the door and the hinge jamb. [See accompanying pictures.] There is a wide vertical slit between a door and a door jamb when a door is open.

With the door open, as described by Mrs. Goodbody, the slit or crack measures 1¼ inches. And a person hiding behind the door is visible to one entering the bathroom.

Gunshot Miss Held "Miracle."

Now we get to the second phase of that dramatic doorway scene. You will remember that Mrs. Goodbody says that the woman in black stepped from behind the door, and fired upon her. Mrs. Goodbody leaned forward. The bullet missed her.

The bullet entered the upper right part of the back of the wicker toilet chair. It passed thru and dented the west tile wall 4¼ inches behind the wicker chair. The bullet hole was 37¾ inches from the floor. It is a miracle that Mrs. Goodbody was not struck.

Police found powder marks around the hole on the back of the toilet chair, and a powder pattern, resembling an iris, on the tile wall immediately behind the chair back.

Ordinarily this would mean that the shot was fired at a distance of 18 to 20 inches from the point where the bullet entered, but we know the cartridges used in the murder gun were many years old and outmoded. Since powder deteriorates with age, I cannot be sure that the gun was fired at such short range.

Three More Shots Fired.

Within a few more seconds, three more shots were fired, one in the hallway which lodged in the door of the hallway closet, just opposite the bathroom, and the next two in the bedroom proper. The third shot seared Mrs. Williams' upper left breast and parts of her face, the fourth penetrated her head, inflicting a fatal wound. But I will avoid a further detailed description of the shooting sequence at this time, reserving for tomorrow a scientific description from a hitherto unpublicized source.

In any event, immediately after the shooting a search was made for the murder gun. The service stairway, down which the killer escaped, seemingly was thoroly searched by police. But it was not until 4:25 a. m. next morning, Jan. 20, that the weapon was found. It was discovered by House Detective Tierney on a "hunch search." It lay on an intermediate landing, between the fourth and third floors. Its hard rubber handle had been broken. This indicated that the gun was thrown there, perhaps from the fourth floor.

[Tomorrow we take you to the Chicago Police Scientific Crime Detection laboratory where Director Charles M. Wilson tells his study of the case, starting with the first shot, which was fired in the bathroom.]

SEEK ATTORNEY FOR QUIZZING IN MANGANO CASE

Cigaret Theft, Killing May Be Linked.

Agents for the federal bureau of investigation were reported yesterday searching for a disbarred lawyer, formerly attached as an assistant in the United States attorney's office, for questioning in connection with the theft of $15,000 worth of cigarets from a west side warehouse July 9.

The theft is believed to be linked to the slaying of Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, west side hoodlum, gambler, and "fence" for thieves. Mangano and his bodyguard, Mike Pontillo, were shot to death in gangster fashion near Blue Island av. and Morgan st. 10 days ago.

Bulk of Cigarets Recovered.

Spencer J. Drayton, in charge of the FBI office here, refused to comment on the report. From other investigators it was learned, however, that some of the cigarets that were recovered at one time had been handled by the lawyer. The police have recovered most of the stolen property.

The police continued their search for the actual thieves. Four persons, including Mrs. Florence Barad, 38, of 427 Roslyn pl., have been arrested and charged with receiving stolen property in connection with the theft.

Suspect "Double Cross."

Investigators believe that the thieves were followers of Mangano and that his slaying was the result of a "double cross." The cigarets, consigned for shipment overseas to soldiers, did not have the federal tax stamp and the thieves found it difficult to dispose of them. Mrs. Barad was accused of renting a truck in which the cigarets were stolen and also a store where they were kept.

Dominic [Libby] Nuccio, 49, of 1003 Hudson av., Capone gangster and hoodlum, was discharged yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge William V. Daly in the S. State st. court. He was arrested Thursday for questioning in the Mangano murder and was charged with disorderly conduct when police found no evidence to connect him with the slaying. He denied being involved.

PARK EQUIPMENT STOLEN.

Two beach umbrellas, two beach tables and two benches were stolen from the Jackson park shelter near 63d st. and Stony Island av., the park district attendants reported to police yesterday.

EX-WIFE FIGHTS DIVORCE CHARGE BY DONNELLEY

Couhsel for Mrs. Helen Pauling Donnelley of 1248 Astor st., filed a motion in the Lake County Circuit court in Waukegan yesterday to strike an answer by her former husband, Lt. Comdr. Thorne Donnelley, son of the late Reuben H. Donnelley, publisher, to her suit for $177,262.18, which she charged he owes on his divorce agreement to pay her $30,000 a year for life.

Donnelley, who is on navy duty in Washington, D. C., contended in the answer filed for him on Aug. 1 that she "sold" him the divorce, which she obtained April 13, 1931, on the ground of desertion. He married another woman the same month.

Mrs. Donnelley asked that his answer be stricken as "false and fraudulent." She declared it was "scandalous, impertinent, and intended solely to vilify, humiliate and intimidate her." Judge Ralph J. Dady will hear arguments on the motion to strike at 9:30 a. m., Aug. 22.

METEORS GLOW IN CHICAGO AREA NIGHT SKY SHOW

Residents of Chicagoland remained on the alert last night to watch a heavenly phenomenon produced as the earth passed thru the Perseid shower of meteors.

The meteors were visible and of varying brilliance thruout the night. Atmospheric conditions over Chicago concealed most of the display, but watchers in the vicinity of Gardner, in Grundy county, pronounced the meteors more of a show than an old fashioned Fourth of July fireworks display.

The Perseid meteors are believed to be the debris of Tuttle's comet, discovered in 1858. Tuttle's comet, which has a period of 13½ years, has been seen regularly since its discovery.

TAFT DENOUNCES ARMY NEWS GAG AS 'SILLY' MOVE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 [Special].—Army restrictions against the circulation of certain reading material among service men were termed today by Sen. Taft [R., O.] as "silly" interpretations of the soldier voting law and part of an army publicity campaign to compel relaxation of the act.

Early congressional clarification of the act was indicated following a conference with Senators Taft and Green [D., R. I.] with army and navy officers. The senators agreed on an amendment they said should remove the difficulties now being encountered.

Under the proposed amendment, the only limitations on the circulation of newspapers, magazines, books, films, etc., would be those brought on by transportation restrictions or space limit difficulties. In such cases, the senators said, impartial choices of publications will be made by army-navy methods.

Interpretations "Ridiculous."

While conceding that some of the offending vote act provisions, designed to govern the circulation of political propaganda among service personnel, might be too stringent, Taft charged that many of the army's interpretations of the restrictions were ridiculous.

"Take, for example, the army's stand with reference to the sale of newspapers, magazines, etc., at its post exchanges," he told newsmen. "The army has ruled that the sale of a newspaper on a post exchange constitutes 'army sponsorship' of that newspaper under the soldier vote act.

"The stand is perfectly absurd, but it has been enforced to date with results that are ludicrous in many instances. Sale of a publication of general circulation at any army post exchange no more constitutes 'sponsorship' by the army than does the sale of a brand of tooth paste, cigarets, or chewing gum."

Hopes for Quick Action.

Sen. Taft said the provisions written into the act at his suggestion were intended to apply only to the distribution of reading matter which the army had paid for and intended to circulate among the troops.

The proposed amendment to the act, the senator asserted, should remove all excuse for overzealous interpretation of the political propaganda features of the act.

He said he was confident that the senate would act favorably upon the amendment Tuesday and that the house also would approve the changes as soon as possible. He expressed the hope that in the meantime the army would relax the stringent interpretations it has placed upon the act.

Official Guide Banned.

In the latest application of the law, several hundred thousand copies of the "Official Guide to the Army Air Force" were banned from sale at post exchanges because they contained a pen portrait of President Roosevelt captioned "commander in chief of the army and navy."

Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, chief of the army public relations, contended "there is a question as to whether the picture violates title V of the law now that the President is a candidate." Title V prohibits federal distribution of propaganda bearing on a national election, a section Surles said was "difficult" for the army to interpret.

Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.] disclosed he has written to Secretary of War Stimson about the army's ban on the film "Wilson," which deals with the life of President Wilson. Chandler said he understood the film never had been passed upon by the military services board of review, set up for such purposes, but had been banned on the recommendation of a few members of the board who happened to see the film in a New York city movie house.

Enjoins Husband

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
Mrs. Arline Friedlander.

Mrs. Arline Friedlander, 36, of 168 E. 154th st., Harvey, obtained an injunction from Judge Sabath in Superior court yesterday restraining her estranged husband, William J., 38, from instituting divorce action against her in any court in the country outside of Cook county. Friedlander is in the blueprint business in Columbus, O.

Mrs. Friedlander filed a bill for separate maintenance on Oct. 11, 1943, charging her husband with misconduct in Dayton, O. He was enjoined from seeking a divorce in Dayton.

Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, representing Mrs. Friedlander, told Judge Sabath yesterday that Friedlander had attempted to evade the spirit of the injunction by filing a divorce suit in Columbus, O. The injunction was broadened to apply to every city in the United States, outside Cook county. Mrs. Friedlander also was awarded $250 a month temporary maintenance. They were married in 1925, and separated May 25, 1943.

Bond of each was set at $20,000. They were identified by Miss Viola Gobry, 18, of 924 E. 42d pl., who said the pair robbed her escort, Herbert Jahnke, 24, of 6630 Oakley av., and attacked her at 41st st. and the Outer dr. Aug. 1. Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Boy's court heard the case.

YANKS WILL GET POLITICAL NEWS FROM 3 PAPERS

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 11. — The policies of this war theater regarding army administration of the soldiers' vote law against the dissemination of political argument and propaganda to troops were announced here today.

Under the rulings, which fill two pages of single spaced typewriting, the soldiers will receive information on how to obtain and fill out absentee ballots or, where permitted, federal ballots; they will be told the names of the candidates in their home districts, including those running for Presidcnt, Vice President, senator, and local congressman; and they will get an opportunity, thru a complex poll, to select three newspapers from the United States which the army promises to distribute thru post exchanges.

Get Stars and Stripes.

Meanwhile, the only assurance that United States troops have that they will not live in a political vacuum between now and the time they get papers from home is chiefly the army dominated Stars and Stripes, which is noted for its wooden presentation of anything bordering on controversial topics.

An immediate result of the new order has been the banning of the sale of foreign newspapers, which of course means all British periodicals, from sale at army camps and post exchanges. This step was taken because the law — an amendment to the Hatch act against pernicious political activity — prohibits the government from sponsoring the distribution of material not having a general circulation in the United States.

One spokesman said, however, there is nothing to prevent a soldier with leanings toward the British brand of journalism from buying a local newspaper outside his camp or listening to the British Broadcasting company's news broadcast over the radio, or even from listening to the Berlin radio.

Choose from 15 Papers.

Col. Thomas R. Kerschener, San Antonio, Tex., theater advisor on voting matters, said 15 representative newspapers from the United States will be submitted to a soldiers' poll for the choice of their favorite three, which the army then will give them an opportunity to purchase. If the soldiers prefer a paper not included in this list they will have the right to vote for it.

The top three will then be brought into the theater without army screening or otherwise tampering with their contents. All other matter disseminated under army sponsorship, such as overseas newspaper editions, will continue to be subject to the theater command's approval.

It was explained that permission to distribute overseas editions was granted to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago Sun, and New York Times before the vote law was passed. Only THE TRIBUNE and the Times have published such editions, which are screened by a special board and have never been found objectionable. These editions, which are not in general circulation, can continue to be distributed over here subject to theater approval of each edition.

Wins a Divorce

MRS. MYRTLE A. PREUSSER.

Mrs. Myrtle A. Preusser, 40, of 596 Selbourne rd., Riverside, told Judge Charles A. Williams in Superior court yesterday that her husband, Laurence P., 37, owner of a dental supply business, insisted on getting his own way in everything, even to the point of striking her. She was granted a divorce on her cross bill charging cruelty. His bill charging desertion was dismissed. They were married Nov. 9, 1929, and separated Aug. 2, 1943. Mrs. Preusser was awarded their $15,000 home with $3,000 worth of furnishings, and $1,500 cash.

FORD ENVISAGES WORK FOR ALL IF THEY WANT IT

Big Bay, Mich., Aug. 11 (AP).—Henry Ford, who long has maintained that industry and agriculture never have produced enough for all human requirements, today visualized a post-war world in which there will be greater demand than ever for the product of the farm and factory and a job for everybody who really wants to work.

Ford has just passed his 81st birthday in excellent health. He is vacationing in the nearby Huron mountain region with a two mile hike as part of his daily routine.

He said in an interview that he hoped the economy to be established after the war would require everybody to work.

Plastic Auto Bodies.

As part of his program to create employment he is modernizing a saw mill here and looking forward, he said, to the time when the mill can be converted to the production of plastic automobile bodies.

"Many a good man who could do things has been living without working," he said. "I am thinking particularly of the people who have lived by clipping coupons or cashing dividend checks. There can be no contentment, prosperity or progress, unless everybody contributes something to the common good."

Ford reasserted his feeling that industry's function was to provide employment and produce the goods society needs for an abundant life. "The companies organized solely to produce dividends," he said, "cause all the idleness, and out of idleness comes sickness.

"We can have an abundant life—a higher standard of living than we ever have known—if we are just careful about what is written into the agreements at the peace table."

Denounces Munition Makers.

Repeating his denunciation of munitions makers as responsible for the rise of the world's war lords, Ford added:

"Until they are exposed, we cannot hope for a lasting peace to follow the present conflict."

"When the peace to follow this war is outlined," he went on, "provision must be made for the elimination of illiteracy in every corner of the world. Educated people think for themselves and thinking people cannot be bamboozled into war for the financial gain of a limited few."

ROPE—a tie that binds the Americas...

WHEN the enemy invaded the Philippines—source of 95% of the manila rope so vital to our Navy and Merchant Marine—the situation looked black, except for one thing . . . 2,000 acres of abaca seedlings (manila hemp) were growing down in Panama, on an experimental farm of the United Fruit Company.

As far back as 1925 the development of strains of abaca suitable for the American tropics had been started in Middle America at the request of foresighted men in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

To meet the stringent and ever-increasing demands for rope in the war emergency, the United Fruit Company expanded the abaca plantings at top speed. In this strictly non-profit undertaking the Company has been given full cooperation by the four Middle American governments involved. Today nearly 30,000 acres of this strategic crop are flourishing in the American tropics. Enough is being harvested now to meet the urgent needs of our fighting and merchant ships. And the supply is increasing every month.

Never again need our hemisphere depend on the Far East for "sea-going" rope. This is now a tried and tested member of the ever-growing society of strategic crops in the Western World.

* * *

When the United Fruit Company's Great White Fleet is no longer needed for war service around the world—and the ships return to their Caribbean routes—abaca will find a place in their capacious holds. Together with other strategic crops developed in Middle America during the war—rubber, quinine, rotenone, essential oils—abaca will prove a valuable addition to peacetime trade between the Americas.

THE KING'S SECOND MINISTER.

American troops serving on the soil of our allies are paid in the currency of the allied country. The convenience of the practice recommends it, but the manner in which we are obtaining the foreign currencies to meet the army pay rolls is strange.

To pay our troops in Britain we have been buying British pounds and crediting the British with gold, this at a time when we are shipping the British billions of dollars of lend-lease goods, a considerable proportion of which the British government is selling to its own and other people and keeping the receipts in the treasury. There is no reverse lend-lease on the army pay rolls, altho a fraction of the profits which the British have made on foodstuffs and other articles of civilian consumption which we have given them and which they have sold would meet the demand. There is no "transfer problem" here.

The situation with regard to our troops in India is stranger still. We do not give the Indian government gold for rupees with which to meet the pay roll. We give the British government gold, the British government credits the Indian government or banks with pounds, and gives us the rupees which it receives in exchange. India already has a huge credit balance in London, so large that the Indian delegates to the Bretton Woods financial conference expressed doubt that the war depleted industries of Britain will be able, after the war, to furnish enough British goods to India to discharge that debt. The Indians sought unsuccessfully to have the world bank assume the British debt and permit India to draw dollars against it for purchases in the United States.

If we bought rupees for dollars in India a dollar balance would be created there with which the Indians could, after the war, buy American goods. But we do not do that. We give the gold to Britain, India gives us the rupees for our army pay rolls, and in return receives a credit balance in pounds which it can spend only in Britain.

The Indian pay arrangements are a perfect illustration of Mr. Roosevelt's conception that this country is a colony bound to serve the mother country at its own cost. As the king's second minister he is as loathe as is the king's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British empire, but for the benefit of the empire he will do all he can to liquidate the American Republic.

We hope Mr. Dewey will take up this issue during the campaign. He can be the American candidate against the foreign candidate.

PACIFIC AIR RIGHTS.

Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand is advocating joint ownership and operation of trans-Pacific air service by his country, Australia, Canada, and the United States, he told the house of representatives in Wellington recently. Americans who have faith in their country's future won't want any part of that idea. We do not intend to set up any monopolies or cartels in international flying after the war.

The United States gave cheap, safe, and comfortable transportation to the world both on land and in the air, and did it thru open competition of private enterprise. If the public is to enjoy these same benefits in transoceanic air travel, they will have to come in the American way. Monopolies, internationally owned or not, tend to jack up prices and run down the service.

Mr. Fraser had another idea that may be acceptable. He said he wants to establish a British air route from New Zealand to Canada, with landing rights in Honolulu, in return for which Americans may operate to New Zealand. The United States should have no objection to the New Zealanders extending their air service to any place on the globe as long as Americans have the right to fly there, too. But we must have treaties guaranteeing us the right of transit over and commercial entry into foreign countries by air. Our air rights in Canada are the most immediate concern because the aerial short lines to Europe and Asia cross the dominion. American aviation is so far advanced we will not have to erect any barriers here against foreign nations which grant us air rights in their possessions. Our private operators are not afraid of foreign competition if they can fly the same routes.

Our armies and our navy have won important bases in the Pacific which we must hold for military reasons. The commercial air rights in these places must also remain with us, but we can afford to share them with friendly powers who help to defray the maintenance costs. Freedom of air commerce in the Pacific will develop that archipelago and the orient and bring prosperity and a greater chance for peace to all of us.

MORE RAILROAD MODERNIZATION.

The Pennsylvania railroad has announced that it soon will put into main line operation a new system of train-to-train and train-to-control-tower radio telephone communication. Locomotive engineers on moving trains will be able to talk with their crews in the caboose, which the Pennsylvania, for reasons of its own, calls a "cabin car." They also will be able to talk with other engineers and with dispatchers and tower operators.

The system makes use of frequency modulation radio signals, carried by induction thru steel rails and ordinary telegraph wires, so that the impulses are confined to railroad property and no transmitting licenses are necessary. The method has been in experimental use for two years on a Pennsylvania branch line.

Communication between moving trains and dispatching stations hasn't changed much in this country since railroads began to operate. The time honored system of train orders, written in manifold in telegrapher's script, and passed up to the trainmen on hoops from the station platforms was in use in Casey Jones' day. It still is. The jump from that to frequency modulation is a long one, but it is characteristic of present day railroading. Quick adaptation of modern methods and new techniques is a healthy sign in any industry, and the way American railroads have stepped out in the last 10 years with diesel power, centralized traffic control, streamlined and air conditioned equipment, teletype printers, and electronic communication systems promises well for their post-war future.

Trainmen who can report their position any time by picking up a telephone instrument and who can talk to each other and receive orders, will be able to operate their trains with more safety and maintain faster schedules. The tracks will be able to handle more trains. Longer freight trains will be more practical with the engine and caboose hooked up by radio telephone, and now that diesel power is here drags of 125 or more cars have become commonplace. A lot of the make-work or featherbedding rules ought to pass out with the adoption of the Pennsylvania's communication system, including those still on the books limiting the length of trains.

THE SPENDERS TAKE OVER.

The director of the budget, Harold D. Smith, recently published revised estimates of what the government will spend and collect during the fiscal year which began the first of July. The outgo, despite the likely shortening of the war, he thinks will not be much smaller than seemed likely in January, but tax receipts, he believes, will be 5 billions more than the earlier estimate. So the deficit will be 53½ billions instead of 59 billions.

What we would have liked to have from Mr. Smith was some indication of reductions in expenditures that will be put into effect promptly after the end of hostilities. But nothing of the sort is to be found in his statement. On the contrary, he seized the opportunity to argue for the continuation of the war time controls after peace comes. As we all know, they came high.

Smith refuses to recognize that the main function of his bureau is to find ways to save money, not to seek out arguments for continuing to spend it. His agency was created after the last war for the purpose of effecting a reduction in government costs from the level reached in the last war. Charles G. Dawes, the first director, did a whale of a job of cutting out the waste. The department heads and the bureau chiefs had to justify every nickel they requested of the general. He got expenses down to a point where they were more than covered by income and the debt was being paid.

Smith's argument for continuing the elaborate war control machinery helps to explain some of the recent appointments to the budget bureau. On July 28, Congressman Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, made public a list of cabinet officers who had been in communication with the Communist-CIO political action committee. On the list were Paul Appleby, assistant director, bureau of the budget, and Louis Bean, chief fiscal analyst, bureau of the budget.

Appleby and Bean were until recently important figures in the department of agriculture. They had played an important part in discovering ways to spend money so that the department became the third biggest spending department of the government headed by a cabinet officer. Only the army and navy spent more. The department last year spent more than 2 billion dollars, more than twice the cost of all federal government activities before the other war. Appleby and Bean were close advisers of Henry Wallace, when, as secretary of agriculture, he ordered the destruction of 6 million little pigs and millions of sows to put prices up. With this pair in the budget bureau, heaven help us!

The list of post-war projects is growing to carry out the ideas of John Maynard Keynes, sometimes referred to as the "Englishman who rules America." The treasury department has agreed to the Bretton Woods scheme to enable 40 governments to acquire good American money in exchange for the product of their printing presses; a determined effort is being made to pass the Kilgore-Truman measure giving a bonus to CIO war workers; a proposal to hold durable war supplies for five years after the war is being strongly urged, and now the bureau of the budget is arguing for the continuation of the war control burocracy, and has placed in responsible positions two of the most notorious of the pre-war spending bund. If we don't have inflation in this country after the war, it won't be because the New Deal didn't do its utmost to bring that about.

THE HAUNTED HAT.

On the advice of our psychiatrist, the police concurring, we have decided to burn the hat of Autolycus.

How we traded hats with that poet and amateur of homicide, and how a curious sequence of his thoughts filtered down from the hat that had been his into the mind that had been ours, has been told [Line, Aug. 2].

At first the experience was diverting and agreeable, but a change ensued and we seemed to hear a hissing sound, beginning when he donned the hat and ceasing only when we took it off. It was like an endless repetition, slow, then fast, of a single sound . . . sea . . . sea . . . sea . . . sea sea sea seaseaseasea! And there was thought of drowning.

* * *

In time, however, the thing took form, rhythm, words, French words, oddly enough, arranged in a quatrain which, if you once start you cannot stop reciting. We wrote them down:

Combien ces six saucissons-ci, C. C.?
C'est six sous, ces six saucissons-ci!
Si ceci ne suffit pour ces saucissons-ci,
Vous pouvez les garder. Merci, C. C.!

It was after studying this queer thing for some time without enlightenment that we called on our psychiatrist.

* * *

"Well," said the doctor, "this is the first time I ever tried to examine two minds under the same hat, and the only meaning I get from the verse is that two people with the same initials are haggling over the price of sausage. It's one C. C. to another C. C. And the sound of C. C. is repeated, variously spelled, 16 times in four lines, which is enough to account for the hissing sound you have mentioned. Do you and Autolycus know any people with the initials C. C.?"

"We both do," I told him. "Claudia Cassidy and Charles Collins. One is a drama critic and the other used to be."

"Ha!" cried the doctor. "It's plain now. Two drama critics hissing each other. I suggest you burn that hat."

* * *

"Here's a match, brother," said the policeman who had been standing guard.

According to section 1505 of the law, those receiving benefits under this legislation would have such benefits charged against any adjusted compensation or any other future allowances authorized. "In the event the veteran obtained a loan under the terms of this act, the agency distributing such adjusted compensation shall first pay the unpaid balance and accrued interest due on such loans to the holder of the evidence of such indebtedness . . ." Similarly, payments made by the government for education would be deductible from any future authorized allowances. State bonuses would not be affected nor will the severance pay.

SUNBATHING IN SEBORRHEA.

We can't get along without the skin because it performs so many functions. As an avenue of elimination, it merits our appreciation and gratitude.

Among other things it contains a vast horde of glands which we call "sebaceous." They secrete an oily material, which is helpful in preventing irritation. But, unfortunately, these structures can become diseased. In fact, chronic seborrhea may be both unsightly and annoying. It is one of our chief causes of baldness. The sebum which is produced may appear as greasy, whitish, or brownish scales. The regions affected chiefly are the scalp, the chest, the back, the areas beneath the arms, and about the groin.

Some authorities consider that acne, which is so distressing to our young people, is merely a manifestation of this same disorder. Certain specialists believe that eating habits play an important rôle. They contend that most of these sufferers use starches and sugars to excess. In consequence, they are always thirsty and are obliged to drink large quantities of water. The ensuing filling of the blood vessels obliges the glands to work overtime, with an increase in symptoms. With a marked reduction in the total volume of fluid consumed, many of these victims improve.

Of course, this condition is not due merely to overactivity of the sebaceous organs. There must be a starter. Even tho diet is corrected, the trouble will remain. Various germs have been blamed, including the staphylococcus; and few of the lesions will fail to show the presence of one or more microbes, as well as yeasts.

A number of these cases will clear up completely under carefully regulated sun baths. Each session is preceded by a shower. At such a time, sudsing may be thoro but rinsing even more so. Every particle of soap will require removal. The first dose is extremely light, less than a minute. But the duration is lengthened 30 to 60 seconds from day to day until a deep tan is attained. This plan will be valueless, however, without cleanliness, and is not recommended for the scalp. In other words, the head must be covered as the balance of the body is bared to Old Sol.

After each exposure, the epidermis may be massaged gently with cocoa butter and then wiped dry. After a few weeks of this treatment, it will take on a smooth, velvetlike texture and many of the blemishes will have disappeared.

The final answer concerning the influence of endocrines and hormones has not been determined. At any rate, for the next month or two, these who are afflicted have the opportunity to apply a useful remedy. One exception should be noted. If the patient has suffered from tuberculosis, no matter if recovery has been established for two or three years, he should avoid the direct rays of the sun.

For those who are beginning to lose their tresses, these simple procedures cannot be recommended. Only an expert in skin diseases should be charged with the responsibility of saving the locks that remain.

SUBSTITUTE.

Mrs. N. writes: Because I have so much housework to do, I cannot keep my infant out of doors as much as I would wish. Is it just as good to let her sleep near an open window?

REPLY.

Yes, if the direct rays of the sun are allowed to enter. Glass acts as a filter against ultraviolet.

TONGUE ENLARGEMENT.

R. J. writes: Sometimes my tongue becomes so swollen that the marks of the teeth show plainly. Is this serious?

REPLY.

Probably not, but the cause should be sought. A careful physical checkup should include a study of the blood and a possible food deficiency.

LEG STIFFENS.

W. E. writes: What can be done for a frozen leg? It stiffens and cannot be moved for a minute or two?

REPLY.

DEPOSITING BLOOD.

REPLY.

Once every six weeks, if your circulation returns to normal in jig time.

A society known as the League for Sanity in Poetry is a little sad these days. It held a contest for what is called a prize sane poem and according to the spokesman, a lady whose name we can't place our finger on, "didn't get nearly as many entries as we anticipated."

Maybe one reason for the paucity of entries lies in that same lady's definition of her society's goals.

"Now, a sane poem is no different than the poems you are reading all the time, I hope," said she. "It has rhythm, meter, music, and meaning. It has something to say: and it says it . . . simply, smoothly, intelligibly. It does not go out of its way to be obscure: and then laugh at you because you don't know what it is all about and are courageous enough to say so. . . .

"It uses punctuation and capitals. Even the author's name appears in capitals. . . . With me every contest [for such sanity] is like the smell of powder to an old war horse, not to mix metaphors at all."

Heaven, no!

It might be worth adding here, in reference to poems which the lady obviously considers insane, that this department is wholly in accord with her. Any poem that "laughs at you because you don't know what it is all about" certainly is insane. So, possibly, is any person who thinks a poem can laugh at him.

This Modern Age.

Just thought you'd like to know that the International Aviation meet opened in Chicago's Grant Park 33 years ago today. The purpose of the nine day meet was to see if those dangerous contraptions really would fly. One of the advertisments in the thick program just unearthed by a spectator who saw his current employer, United Air Lines, graduate from such meets said that the telephone "now is acknowledged" to be a necessary adjunct of business life. Another told of Chicago's new wonder hotel, the Blackstone. An argumentative article, which seemed to be sledding uphill with its title, "Nothing Is Impossible in America," referred, seriously, to the flyers as "birdmen" and "skymen," but a note of stability was given to the entire booklet by the Studebaker ad, which said that its name was synonymous with elegance whether on horse drawn or motor driven vehicles. The races opened each day with music, and on Aug. 12, 1911, the first rendition by the band was a march, "The Aviator." Singers later came thru with such delights as the sextet from "Lucia," "My Hula Hula Love," and "You'd Do the Same Thing." It was an exciting day.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

MR. ROOSEVELT'S EXPERIENCE.

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 7.—Mr. Roosevelt demands a fourth term because he has had experience. There are two kinds of experience, successful and unsuccessful. From the standpoint of the people's welfare, Mr. Roosevelt's experience has been tragically unsuccessful.

His domestic policies failed dismally. His vote catching schemes created the world's largest peace time public debt, but solved no problems. He divided labor into warring factions. He fostered bitterness between employes and employers. He packed the courts with henchmen and lame ducks. He sought the support of racial groups, and thus revived racial animosities which had almost vanished in America.

Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies were worse failures. His nine year leadership guided us into war with enemies who are at peace with our allies. Our foe Japan is intimately friendly with our ally Russia. Our foe Germany is not at war with our ally China.

Mr. Roosevelt squanders billions on nations which contribute nothing in return except flowery eulogies of Mr. Roosevelt and token declarations of war against our enemies. Our help alone enables our allies to hold, regain and expand their empires, frequently over the protests of subject peoples. The seven seas are churned by ships carrying our youth and resources to foreign shores. Our own ports are receiving little except thousands of crippled Americans and hundreds of plump foreigners; these last come to tell Mr. Roosevelt how much more of our blood and treasure their countries require.

Mr. Roosevelt's vaunted experience has been a collection of devastating failures which will cost America an appalling price in sorrow and toil. The brightest spot in our national outlook is the rapidly approaching end of his disastrous rule. OSCAR A. BIGLER.

I have often wondered why speakers and writers hang onto the word "democracy" to the neglect of the word "republic" in defining our form of government. Lima Ridge, Wis., Aug. 2.—Mr. Roosevelt, the supreme charlatan of American politics, wanted the fourth term nomination, wanted it more than anything else in life. He has received it and will move heaven and earth to achieve his inordinate ambition.

The Republican party has a wonderful chance in this election. It has the advantage of a very strong ticket, composed of two able, intelligent and genuine Americans and should, by sheer honesty and sincerity, win out in November. The opposition, however, is superbly organized, particularly the CIO [3 million dollar campaign fund objective] and will go all out to elect Roosevelt.

The man who longs to return to his home on the Hudson has the support of the most disreputable elements in American society. He also has the backing of a not inconsiderable portion of the voting public who labor under the misapprehension that Roosevelt cannot be defeated. THE TRIBUNE, the most powerful and forward looking newspaper in the United States, can make a magnificent contribution to America by exposing the subversive activities of the CIO, and by exploding the myth of Mr. Roosevelt's invincibility. FIGHTERS, NOT KILLERS.

Cicero, Ill., Aug. 7.—To the lady who fears that our men are coming back from this war hard and bitter killers, the following is an excerpt from a letter received from my sister, a nurse serving with the 5th army over in Italy:

"One of our casualties, after shooting a German who was too close for his own safety [Jerry was trying to share the Yank's foxhole—under heavy fire] crawled out to drag the man he wounded out of further danger. And at the Jerry's request he pulled the wounded man's picture of his wife out of his pocket so he could see it. Yeah, it's a great war!"

Is that killer substance?

GUNS AND CHILDREN.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The city council has adopted an ordinance regulating the sale and display of air guns to minor children. Under the ordinance it is unlawful for a merchant to display these guns upon a counter in his store. It is also unlawful for the merchant to sell one to a minor child. Let us hope that some way can be found to teach fathers to place real guns, if they must have one in the home, beyond the reach of children, because guns and children play a losing game and it is not a question of how they played the game when the shot is fired. I'M NOT GILMAN, SAYS HILLMAN; EXPLAINS 'ERROR'

Claims H Is Pronounced as G in Russian.

New York, Aug. 11 [Special].—Sidney Hillman asserted tonight that the authoritative Who's Who in America had erred in listing his name at birth as Gilman. Interviewed on the point of the discrepancy in his name, he said:

Sidney Hillman

"No, no, no! The name is Hillman, and always has been. Mine is an old family, with several generations of rabbis in Lithuania and England."

Hillman, who is directing the collection of a multi-million dollar war chest from CIO union members for a fourth term for President Roosevelt, evinced no interest in correcting what he termed the publication's error.

Father's Name Listed as Gilman.

The book, whose facts are seldom challenged by those seeking mention between its covers, begins a long entry with: "Hillman, Sidney, labor leader; born Zagare, Lithuania, March 23, 1887; son of Schmuel and Judith [Palkin] Gilman; to United States at age of 20 . . ."

"You see, there is no H in the Russian alphabet, and Russians give the English G sound to words and names including what we know as the letter H," Hillman continued.

[Others explained that when the Russians cuss out Hitler, they call him "Gitler."]

"Our name in Lithuania was Hillman long before the country came under the influence of Russia. In fact, Russian was not spoken during my time there. It was mostly German that we heard."

Blames Office Aids.

Reminded that he presumably had approved the wording of the item, Hillman laid the blame to office associates who he said had probably checked the copy. He referred to associates at headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, of which he has been president for 30 years. But the errors, if any, have been continued for the last several issues.

The head of the CIO political action committee, most vociferous of the groups supporting the fourth term drive, has kept his associates in the dark about the apparent change in name, for one of them had explained with forceful inaccuracy that Gilman was the maiden name of Hillman's mother. In the Hillman version, it's all the result of a Russian mixup in language.

91 DRIVERS JOIN STRIKE AT B-29 ENGINE PLANT

Ninety-one electric truck drivers yesterday joined 430 toolmakers, machinists, and grinders on strike at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation. The toolroom employes have been on strike since Tuesday night over the discharge of a tool grinder.

The truck drivers left their jobs yesterday saying, "We want more money and we won't work until we get it." The strike has already interfered seriously with the production of engines for B-29 bombers.

If the strike continues many days more, thousands of other workers whose work depends upon that of the tool department employes, who are on strike, will have to be laid off for lack of work. The strikers are members of the CIO United Automobile Workers' union.

CHARGE CHURCH CELLAR IS USED FOR CHILD LABOR

Allege Firm Moved Work in Warning.

BY JUNE GESERICK.

The Judsen Rubber Works, Inc., 4107 Kinzie st., which allegedly employed children under 16 in a church basement after being warned against violating the child labor provisions of the fair labor standard act in its factory, was named in a criminal information filed yesterday before Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw by Assistant United States Atty. Michael J. Boyle.

The corporation, Carl B. Judsen, vice president and secretary, and Leroy Goldstone, treasurer, are charged in the information with 48 counts of shipping in interstate commerce goods which were produced within 30 days of employing "oppressive child labor."

Allege 50 Children Used.

Boyle said investigation showed that the firm employed more than 50 children under 16 in manufacturing occupations. He said inspectors, while interviewing minors in the factory, found a 15 year old boy who reported that he had been allowed to continue working on a punch press after the machine had cut off the tips of two fingers on his left hand.

Two months later, in another accident on the same punch press, he lost more than half of his right thumb, the boy is reported to have told inspectors.

Promised to Dismiss.

Boyle said the firm promised to discharge all children under 16 and to get age certificates for those 16 and 17 years old after the first inspection of the factory disclosed the employment of 30 minors. Another visit to the factory revealed that five children employed by the company during the corporation's first investigation still were at work, he reported.

An anonymous telephone call informed Thomas O'Malley, regional director of the wage and hour and public contracts division, that children were being employed by the company in a shop set up in the basement of the Humboldt Park Seventh Day Adventist church, 2914 W. North av., Boyle reported. He said investigation disclosed that 20 children, ranging in age from 12 to 15, worked on machinery provided by the Judsen company.

Mrs. Mildred Conquest, teacher of the first six grades in the Humboldt Park Junior academy, conducted by the church, and a resident of the church building, yesterday reported that M. N. Skapsheim, minister of the church, left Chicago the first of June.

MICHIGAN BRIBE TRIAL JURY TO GET CASE TODAY

Mason, Mich., Aug. 11 [Special].—The jury will begin deliberations tomorrow in Michigan's legislative graft trial. The case was brought to a close here this afternoon after Kim Sigler, special prosecutor, completed counsels' arguments to the jury. Judge Simpson excused the Circuit court jurors until Saturday morning. At that time he will submit the case to them, he said, for their verdict.

A flat demand for the conviction of all 22 defendants was made by the prosecutor as he rested his case.

Replying to queries of the defense counsels as to why the lobbyist, Maj. Charles F. Hemans, former Democratic regent of the University of Michigan, who gave evidence for the state, was not a defendant, he told the jury Hemans' testimony was necessary to obtain the conviction of the men on trial and for that reason Hemans was granted immunity from prosecution.

CIO UNION PRESIDENT DESCRIBED AS BULLY AT ASSAULT HEARING

New York, Aug. 11 [Special].—Neighbors of Thomas De Lorenzo, CIO union president who was convicted yesterday on a federal charge of lying about not having a criminal record, today gathered in Brooklyn's Flatbush court and described him as a neighborhood bully who once had struck a crippled woman.

The occasion was De Lorenzo's arraignment on a charge of assaulting a neighbor, William Thorn, an advertising man. Thorn testified that the labor leader struck him and called him vile names after he had denied striking De Lorenzo's dog.

The court paroled De Lorenzo in the custody of his counsel.

Yesterday De Lorenzo was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $500 on a charge of making false statements in a civil service application. Tho he had denied having a criminal record, evidence was submitted to show he had been arrested on a charge of homicide by automobile, inciting a riot and malicious mischief, and disorderly conduct.

STEAL LIQUOR FROM OFFICE.

Joseph J. Gross, executive head of the Chicago Brewery Supply company, 520 N. Michigan av., reported to police yesterday that $235 worth of liquor had been stolen from his office.

FINE OF $125,000 SLAPPED BY WLB ON WAR FACTORY

Cleveland, O., Aug. 11 [Special].—A $125,000 penalty was levied today by the war labor board against Lear Avia, Inc., of Piqua, O., for instituting wage scales, vacation plans, and promotion systems not authorized by the wage stabilization code.

O. W. L. Coffin, WLB enforcement chairman, said the penalty was ordered under a stipulation submitted by William Lear, the plant's president.

The company, whose personnel increased from 90 in 1937 to 3,000 in 1943, manufactures war materials under a cost-plus contract.

Coffin said the $125,000 "must be disregarded by the company and the treasury department in computing labor costs under cost-plus contracts and for income tax and other purposes."

Plant Admits Violations.

In the stipulation, the company admitted violations since Jan. 6, 1943, including an "unauthorized night shift differential to 650 workers; an excessive and unauthorized hiring rate; unauthorized changes in its vacation plan affecting the bulk of its workers, and individual wage increases and fictitious promotions to 240 employes."

"The violations of the war time wage code were an unstabilizing influence in the area," said a WLB official.

Made "Honest Mistakes."

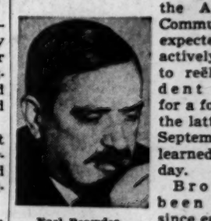
The WLB said the $125,000 penalty does not cover the full extent of the violation. It said it took into consideration the company's contribution to the war production program and the company's voluntarily shifting of personnel in recent months to eliminate irregularities.

A statement issued by the firm's public relations department said:

"Taking into consideration the overnight growth of Lear Avia, we made honest mistakes. We feel the board in Cleveland was very understanding and fair thruout the entire matter."

BROWDER, RED CHIEF, WILL JOIN IN FIGHT FOR F.D.R. NEXT MONTH

New York, Aug. 10 [Special].—Earl Browder, directing genius of the American Communists, is expected to enter actively the fight to reelect President Roosevelt for a fourth term the latter part of September, it was learned here today.



Earl Browder.

Browder has been quiescent since early in the summer. His last public appearance was on July 4, when he addressed the annual convention here of the International Workers' order, a Communist organization.

At the headquarters of the Communist party—now called the Communist Political association—Browder's secretary explained that the red leader has been on vacation for some time and that he is not expected back until Labor day. She said there is little likelihood that he will make any public appearances until the end of September. She refused to disclose his present whereabouts.

'L' TRAINS TIED UP BY FIRE EAST OF SHERIDAN RD.

North and southbound trains on the north side division of the elevated railroad were tied up for about 40 minutes at the peak of the evening rush hour last night by a fire on the structure east of the Sheridan rd. station. Ties and catwalks extending about 50 feet on a turn were burned. Power in the third rail was shut off while firemen under Chief Albert Bartke of the 13th battalion extinguished the flames. A cigaret stub started the fire, firemen believed.

Remember this riddle?

WHAT IS it that many rich men would give their fortunes to possess, yet many poor men own in abundance?

The answer is—health!

Health is so important to your happiness that we, at Good Housekeeping, feel it's our duty to supply you with abundant information on how to keep well—and to make sure that the information we give you is accurate, authentic, and helpful.

what concerns your health concerns us

It is for this reason that Good Housekeeping devotes more pages to health subjects than does any other women's magazine.

It is for this reason that our articles on health not only are written by outstanding authorities but are checked, rechecked, and checked again.

But our concern for your health doesn't stop there. It extends into many other departments of our magazine.

Backaches often occurred, we found, when kitchen sinks were too low. Our research helped lead to adoption of the 36-inch-high sink.

In none of our columns will we mention a product, a method, or an idea unless we first satisfy ourselves that it is safe for you.

Nor will we publish any advertising unless we have investigated the truthfulness of its claims, the accuracy of its information, the safety of its recommendations.

Because many of you are canning food for the first time this year, Good Housekeeping has embarked upon a nationwide crusade to tell you how to can safely.

All home canners, listen!

"Put up tomatoes and fruits by the boiling water bath method," we advise, "but the only safe way to can low-acid vegetables—which means all vegetables except tomatoes—is by the correct use of a pressure cooker."

Since 1925, we have pointed out—again and again—the dangers of botulinus food poisoning from improper canning of low-acid vegetables.

This year, we have been repeating that message, most emphatically.

Why?

For one reason only: to guard your health and the safety of those for whom you cook.

The magazine that takes nothing for granted

Even if it meets our laboratory standards, even if the majority of our human guinea pigs find it satisfactory—if it is appreciably irritating to women with "sensitive" skin, we will refuse to recommend it.

All the food we prepare must be good to eat, appetizing, delicious. That goes without saying. But we make sure that every method suggested for preparing foods safeguards the nutritional values so important to your family's welfare. Electric cords must meet recognized safety requirements. Refrigerators must be shown to maintain the proper temperatures for storing perishable foods.

Painting cellar steps (particularly the lowest step) white is advised by Good Housekeeping as a safety measure, not a "home decorating" scheme. It's a precaution against missteps and falls.

For uppermost in the minds of all our technicians, home economists, scientists, and editors, is the belief that your health, your interests, your protection are of paramount importance.

In that belief, we will continue to abide by this pledge to you:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page in Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

CHARGES POWER GRAB BY POLICE UNION IN JOLIET

Chief Assails Motive in 'Grievance' Setup.

Police Chief Ernest E. Overbey of Joliet, Will county, charged yesterday that members of his department who were organized two months ago into a police labor union are attempting to usurp his control of the force.

The union, local No. 44 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employes, has demanded that the city council order Overbey to consult with a grievance committee in the administration of the police department.

Would Control Force.

"This committee seeks a type of domination in the department which would be unfair," Overbey said. "It would have the authority to approve or disapprove every move I make.

"Assignment of men to police beats; promotions; assignments of men to the night shifts—everything of an administrative nature now handled by myself and the other officers—would be controled by the union."

Chief Overbey declared the union's demand for a closed shop agreement would create "an impossible situation." The Joliet local claims 38 members among the city's 52 policemen. Overbey said the membership was "padded" by the union's trick of sending cards to 13 policemen on leave in military service, giving them membership without dues or other obligations.

Refused Chief's Offer.

When the union was organized, with the consent of William A. Murphy, Joliet corporation counsel, Overbey offered to meet with the men in a hall in the station and discuss problems with them. They refused, he said, and held meetings in a labor union hall.

The union's grievance committee recognition petition was refused this week in a statement by Mayor Arthur O. Janke, who was supported by Commissioner Albert A. Odenthal. The three other members of the council were neutral.

Raymond E. Shea, secretary of the Will County Central Trades and Labor council, supporting the police union, said, "We plan to fight."

Corporation Counsel Hodes of Chicago stated in an opinion in April that the city has the power to forbid policemen to join any union, and Police Commissioner Allman immediately outlawed police membership in a labor union.

A VISITING UNION SEIZER IS SEIZED —AND QUICKLY

'Help! Police!' Cry Gets Instant Action.

Norman Zuckowsky was rough spoken and contemptuous in his manner yesterday morning when he arrived in Chicago from New York to seize the offices of the Chicago Novelty Workers' union, 209 W. Jackson blvd., and call strikes at three war plants where more than 1,000 of the union's members are employed. With him was Artell Lorenzo Shelton, Negro, of 5337 Wabash av., whom Zuckowsky had hired as a bodyguard.

"Get out, you rats!" was Mr. Zuckowsky's greeting to the union's office force. "I'm taking over, see? Now get out or we'll be back to bust some heads!" Then he and his bodyguard went away for the time being.

Locals Quit International.

The reason for Mr. Zuckowsky's visit goes back several weeks to the withdrawal of the four Chicago locals of the novelty workers from the International Ladies Handbag, Luggage, Belt, and Novelty Workers' union. The international, they charged, has been seized by racketeers who are holding office illegally.

Sidney Garfield, head of the Chicago unions, said the international had brought pressure in every way possible to force the four locals to resume their contributions and return to the fold.

Garfield said it was Zuckowsky's plan to call wildcat strikes of the union's war worker membership and, in the resultant turmoil, to seize by force the offices and records of the Chicago locals.

Tries to Invade War Plants.

After leaving the Jackson blvd. offices, Zuckowsky proceeded with Sheldon to three war plants where strategic war equipment is being manufactured. At each he sought to force his way in to call a strike vote meeting. At two plants the armed guards barred him. At the third, they tossed him and Shelton into the street.

Then Zuckowsky and Shelton returned to the union offices. Meanwhile, Garfield had called Sergeants Kenneth Gorman and Harold Enger of the police labor detail. They were seated in the offices when Zuckowsky's voice was heard.

"We're back to bust them heads! Clear out, all of you. I'm taking over."

The police got to their feet and moved forward. Shelton advanced upon Enger and took a roundhouse swing at him. Enger went into action. When Shelton was picked off the floor he was shouting: "Help! Help! Police!"

He Gets Quick Action.

Enger and Gorman identified themselves as police and locked up both Shelton and Zuckowsky. The latter was particularly indignant when he learned he was under arrest. But he calmed quickly when Enger told him:

"Look, friend, this is Chicago. We take care of our own troubles here. We don't like imported guys. You're going to wish you'd stayed at home."

The two were taken before Judge George L. Quilici in Bond court last night, charged with disorderly conduct, and released on individual bonds signed by the judge, who ordered them to appear before him Tuesday in Des Plaines st. court.

Garfield said he intended to inform the federal bureau of investigation today of Zuckowsky's efforts to disrupt production at the war plants.

EX-DEAN GETS LICENSE TO WED DRIVER OF BUS

A marriage license was issued in Bloomington, Ill., yesterday to Mrs. Janet Nicol Freckelton, former dean of women at the Lindblom High school in Chicago, and Porter Craig, Chicago bus driver. No record of the couple's marriage could be found in Bloomington and a Bloomington parson, who reportedly was engaged to perform the ceremony, refused to comment. Mrs. Freckelton was divorced in Superior court in June by William J. Freckelton on the ground of desertion. She also was awarded custody of a 9 year old son and child support money. Her home is at 11253 Hermosa av., Chicago. Contacted at her home yesterday Mrs. Freckelton denied that she had remarried. At her home in Harvey last night the former Mrs. Craig said she obtained a divorce from Craig last March while she was living in Chicago Heights.

ONE STOLEN SUIT FREES CONVICT; 2D BETRAYS HIM

A suit that didn't fit led to the arrest yesterday of William Nelson, 25, an auto thief who, as a trusty for a deputy warden at the Nebraska state penitentiary at Lincoln, walked out of prison last Tuesday and hitch-hiked to Chicago. He made his escape, he said, because the warden's clothes fit him perfectly.

William Nelson.

Yesterday, having decided that the borrowed suit was beginning to get soiled, Nelson entered the home of Frank Poore, 211 St. Paul av., and helped himself to a freshly pressed one. He changed clothes and stole a valise to carry some extra clothing and two pistols he had taken from the deputy warden's home.

As Nelson walked near North av. and Clark st. Policemen Sam Chelovich and Morris Schaffner stopped him for questioning about the suit he was wearing. It didn't fit, the police said. But they might have believed the story he offered, had they not looked into the valise.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Guinea Pig.

I found a friend,
Grew to depend
Upon his company.

Attention rare
And thoughtful care
He daily gave to me.

I thought 'twas love
He whispered of
And was in ecstasy.

But now I find
That on his mind
Was just psychology.

Word Study.

Here is another for the Real Word Expert: "Inflammable" and "flammable." They each represent something that will burn. T/SGT. R. L. P.

Do You Believe in Signs?

"Do you believe in signs?" seemed to be a natural question with which to open an interview with Jessie Steeres, who has been in the sign business in Chicago, off and on, since 1882.

She was "just an office girl" back in 1882, a girl in high button shoes, when she went to work in the office of her father's sign business on afternoons after school and on Saturdays. There was nothing to indicate to her then that signs were to be a part of her life for more than half a century.

Her father taught her bookkeeping. He must have been a good teacher, for, when she came back into the business in 1933—after taking time out to rear a family and devote herself to her home—it was as a bookkeeper.

In the old days there was delightful swank to the business. Gold letters for street addresses of smart shops were imported from France; opaque white glass letters with gold beveled edges were imported from England. From England, too, came a Briton in the sign business to whom she was married.

In the early days of the business they made mostly street numbers. Then there was a time when they made a great many desk signs of bronze—in those halcyon days when every other desk accommodated a vice president! Now the company specializes in signs for war plants, signs of caution, and safety warnings for large industries where equipment and materials must be handled with care.

She likes this change, she said. "Life is fluid; it must be; it can't be static," she added, her eyes twinkling with the enjoyment of life.

Today her sons manage the business. Of her own choosing, she is at her desk every day. She lives alone in a two room apartment, reads, cooks her own meals, attends the movies, likes to come and go at will—and, if she doesn't qualify as a white collar girl, well, then I never saw one.

Is she superstitious about numbers? Scarcely? There were 13 guests who sat down at her wedding breakfast.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"We have some white tomatoes in our garden this year. Can you tell me how to can them?"

After talking with representatives of seed companies, we found that there is a tomato which is white when ripened. It's the "Snowball" variety, a novelty without much flavor. It has a low acid content, and therefore we don't recommend canning it. If you happen to have a large crop of these, and must can them in order to save them, process them in a pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure for 40 minutes.

Probably the reason is that the oven temperature is high, or that the meringue is baked too long. To get a delicately browned, firm meringue, bake it at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Another help is to have egg whites at room temperature before beating. Use two or three egg whites for one pie topping, with 2 tablespoons sugar to each white, and use ¼ teaspoon flavoring and ¼ teaspoon salt for three whites. In spreading the meringue, be sure it's firmly attached to the edges of the crust, as this will also help prevent wateriness.

"In making vanilla mousse, using cream, eggs, and gelatin, I followed directions closely, but somehow the mousse was too rich."

Perhaps the cream was overwhipped. But remember that a mousse is one of the richest of frozen desserts, and usually a small portion is all we care for. It's delicious, but it is rich.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

A giant hush will fill Soldiers' field at the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival next Saturday night when the festival Negro chorus sings under the direction of Prof. J. Wesley Jones. These 1,000 singers will present two numbers, the traditional "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and then an old number but one which will be new to the 90,000 persons in the audience. It is called "Hush! Hush! Somebody's Calling My Name." Led by Daisy O'Toole, the chorus members will sing and when they come to the word "Hush!" the entire audience will whisper it with the chorus.

The leader for "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," will be Mary Crowley Delaware. Lowell V. Derrick will be the piano accompanist.

Prof. Jones will hold a final rehearsal for his choristers at 8:30 p. m. Thursday at the Metropolitan Community church. Present will be Dr. Edgar Nelson, general choral director of the festival, who will speak briefly. He will be introduced by Dr. Joseph Evans, pastor of the church.

Prof. Jones is assisted in the organizing of the huge choir by church organizations and glee clubs and their directors. Most of them are from the south and west sides of the city, with a few from other parts of Chicago and Cook county.

Thru the Looking Glass

The "bread and butter" gift, the civilized little expression to a hostess in whose home you've spent a few days is no problem if you think first of the flattering gift of beauty aids. What's more, such things are often useful to the woman whose house is open to many guests.

There are, for example, the gift boxes of fine soap, and pretty soap, in guest sizes. She'll love these; they provide an extra thoughtful touch to the bathrooms she turns over to visitors. You'll find these in almost all the shops, in a wide variety of fragrances, colors, and prices.

Then there are the bath oils and the bath crystals. These, too, when provided in guest bathooms, are a little extra touch that hostesses love. Guests, it goes without saying, love them, too! You can send your hostess a great big jar of crystals, if you like, or an average size bottle of oil in any scent you think she'd like. Or you can get little boxes of oils in many fragrances, each in a flacon that holds enough for just one bath.

A sweet scented pomander ball, or a couple of them, to hang in guest rooms or closets, would be a gift of distinction. Good hostesses and housekeepers love things like these. A box of bath mitts, filled with fine soap and scent, would be another good thought; so would sachets, or colognes with dusting powder to match.

Many of the little luxuries that make a guest room perfect in its appointments are beauty aids like these. You can be dead certain you'll please your hostess if you choose a gift that will, in turn, add luster to her reputation for thinking of everything a guest might like to find in a house.

College Girl's Stockings to Be Brightly Hued

BY REA SEEGER.

Costume accessories for college clothes are getting a big whirl. Most exciting are the long cotton stockings in bright red and green and, for the more conservative, dark brown. These bright hues will be worn by every knowing co-ed who intends to keep her costume all one color and by those who demand clear, strong contrast for dresses, red with brown jumper, green with red dress, and so on. A bit startling, at first glance, they'll soon become regulation equipment for the well planned college wardrobe.

Mexican hand blocked fine wool scarves are new variables for the necklines of sweaters, blouses, shirts, or jackets. They're vivid, soft as floss, and can be most effective, swathed in any one of a dozen different arrangements. Some will be worn tied around the arm, some around the belt, a la Fred Astaire and his necktie when he practices, and some will double for swanky twisted turbans around the head—neat, exotic, and eye catching. The white background, gay with strong colored designs, is the most popular. Many are small enough to be worn muffled in the throatline by the jacket of a suit like a masculine ascot.

Belts, with emphasis on wide and barbarically studded variety in smooth leather, suede, or fabric, are among the best college extras. From the good looking leathers with saddle stitching, or brass nail studs or yarn embroidered fabrics, to the dress parade loot flashing with fake jewels, rhinestones, seedpearls, and sequins nothing has been overlooked by the belt designers. For belts magically change the most ordinary dress or outfit.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Three more Chicago nurses have enlisted in the army nurse corps, thus helping to fill the quota of more than 600 who must be recruited for military duty from Illinois by Jan. 1.

Edith Greenberg, 5038 N. Kimball av., Mount Sinai hospital; Florence G. Collins, 7735 Phillips av., St. Francis hospital, Evanston, and Veronica E. Powell, 6026 Winthrop av., Edgewater hospital, have been assigned as 2d lieutenants to Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., for military training to equip them to serve soldiers both overseas and in hospitals in this country.

Miss Madeleine McConnell, chairman of the state committee for procurement and assignment of nurses for the war man power commission, said 681 graduate nurses in Illinois must be recruited for the army and navy by the end of the year. Nine thousand nurses from the entire country must enlist to meet military requirements. Miss McConnell said Illinois exceeded by 40 its quota of 481 nurses for military duty in the first half of 1944.

Working in the administrative section of the base censor's office in New Guinea are three Chicago WAC lieutenants, among the first army women to arrive in that area.

Second Lt. Laura A. Ostrowski examines photographs for military violations of security before the pictures are sent thru the mail. Second Lt. Frances S. Bowen writes that she is enjoying her work in New Guinea, "in spite of its ruggedness." The third Chicagoan in the group, 2d Lt. Colette Fields, is an administrative assistant with the censor's staff.

Dances are given periodically for WACs in New Guinea, Lt. Ostrowski reported. "I like New Guinea much more than I thought I would," she wrote, "and find that the parts of the island I have seen are like a Hollywood interpretation of a tropical island."

The 150 members of post No. 9 of the WOW [woman ordnance workers] at the J. P. Seeburg corporation have elected new officers. They are Helen Werner, president; Jean Walczak, vice president; Bette Baum, treasurer; Kay Susco, recording secretary, and Pearl Long, sergeant at arms.

The Metropolitan post, No. 37, whose members work in war plants which have no individual units of WOW, will spend tomorrow picnicking at the Edgebrook forest preserve, beginning at 9 a. m. Florence Cross is president of the post. Louise Pizzerulli is picnic chairman.

Post No. 24 at Oscar Mayer & Co. now has a sister WOW unit, Post No. 46, which has elected the following officers: Katherine Frye, president; Estella Anderson, vice president; Maude McFadden, recording secretary; Lucille Johnson, corresponding secretary, and Sarnetta Ferris, treasurer.

The Navy Sisters' and Wives' club will meet at 7:30 p. m. Monday in parlor K of the Atlantic hotel. Mrs. Mary Bird, president, will direct proceedings of the session, at which winners of a fund-raising contest in behalf of the organization's treasury will be rewarded with war bonds.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 11.—As soon as Barry Sullivan finishes the romantic lead in "Duffy's Tavern," Hal Wallis will grab him to play opposite Joan Fontaine in "The Affairs of Susan." Barry is the young New York actor who was the psychiatrist in "Lady in the Dark." . . . Paramount has signed Mary Hatcher, 15 year old coloratura soprano, a former protege of Gladys Swarthout. It all started last week when Cass Daley heard Mary sing at a party. Cass spoke to Buddy de Sylva about her. After her audition he signed her p. d. q. and she goes right into "Out of This World" with Diana Lynn, Veronica Lake, and Eddie Bracken. . . . Leland Hayward and Paul Osborn are co-producing "A Bell for Adano" on Broadway this fall. . . . Since Laird Cregar's having a sulking spell, his role in "Hangover Square" has been handed to George Sanders, and it looks as if Geraldine Fitzgerald will do the lead opposite him. Faye Marlowe also is set for it, and John Brahm directs.

Type Casting. Presto! It's Done.

The other day Mrs. Paul Henreid went to visit her husband on the "Of Human Bondage" set, and took along their Nana [69 year old Lutzi Pichler], who's been in her family for three generations, and now cares for the Henreids' little daughter. Director Edmund Goulding saw her, and I'll be darned if he didn't cast her then and there for the part of Henreid's housekeeper in the picture, which will be Nana's first theatrical appearance. . . . "What's in a name?" asks Lester Cowan, as he tosses out the title "Tomorrow the World" [which as a play ran for months on Broadway] and re-christens it "The Intruder." Personally, I like the original title better. But perhaps we're running out of electric light globes.

Star Likes Cold Air, Too.

Margaret Sullavan is mighty happy that when she goes back to Broadway for "Voice of the Turtle" Aug. 28, she'll have an air conditioned theater to play in. She leaves the show in December, and Jean Arthur may take over the part. . . . Sig Arno leaves next week for New York and the comedy lead in "Song of Norway." . . . Elizabeth Patterson joins Charles Boyer, Irene Dunne, and Charles Coburn in "A Woman's Privilege." . . . After two and a half years of touring overseas with "Hey, Rookie!" playing an average of two shows a day for units near the front lines, Sterling Holloway has received his medical discharge and is back in Hollywood. He arrived in Charleston, S. C., via hospital ship on D day. . . . Vivian Della Chiesa sings in the Bowl with the symphony orchestra Sunday. She has the kind of voice to remember. . . . Rise Stevens sings "The Star Spangled Banner" at the Hollywood opening of "Going My Way" Aug. 16, which is for the benefit of the House of Nazareth.

It's Harder to Be Good.

Dan Duryea, who's so convincing as a meanie, is having a hard time convincing Twentieth Century he can be a nice guy. He's just made test No. 3 for the genial district attorney in "Nob Hill." . . . A letter from Arthur Treacher: "Having been a gentleman's gentleman to so many gentlemen for so many years, I do feel that with concentration and my natural imitative powers, I may some day be qualified to play the part of a gentleman. What do you think, Hedda?" . . . Sidney Buchman is doing two scripts for "Over 21" because it isn't known whether Irene Dunne or Rosalind Russell will play the Ruth Gordon part. In the theater an actress is handed a role and asked to play it, and that's that. But in pictures they're fitted to them like an Adrian gown.

Industry Aids Crippled, Says WMC Director

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The attitude of industry toward the handicapped in recent years has been most encouraging, because it no longer judges a worker's usefulness on what he has lost but rather on what he has left, William H. Spencer, WMC regional director, said yesterday, at the eighth annual guidance and personnel conference at Northwestern university.

"Consideration for the handicapped workers' future is of prime significance today," he stated, "and it is our responsibility to see that they are so placed in industry as to maintain a normal life, be given opportunity to progress, and to succeed in whatever field they select."

Mr. Spencer disclosed that the employment of women reached an all-time high in June, 1944, of 18,180,000 of whom less than one-fifth were under 18. The greatest increases were among women above 35 years old, he said.

"Many of these women are filling seasonal jobs and will soon return home," he added, "but to make a permanent place for them beside men in jobs for which they once would not have been considered, should be industry's firmly established post-war policy."

Referring to racial, religious, and national origin minority groups, Mr. Spencer warned against repetition of mistakes made after World War I in not affording these groups opportunities for full employment. Facts support the conviction, he asserted, that minority and majority groups, thru common experiences of shop and union activity, learn to appreciate each other's better qualities and to recognize their rights as human beings.

"Subsequent investigations to the riots following World War I.," he continued, "revealed that they had their basis in the fears, suspicions, and hatreds generated from interracial competition for jobs in an atmosphere of insecurity."

INSTALMENT XII.

SECRET ROOM.

Once outside Carol looked about carefully. The chauffeur of the big car was still asleep, but the sentry saw her, stopped, looked at her indifferently, and resumed his pacing. There was no one in sight when she reached the secluded bend in the wall where the toolshed was.

"Bright?" she said softly.

There was a stir inside. She pushed the door open and found him fuming.

"I feel like a boarder owl in a prairie dog's hole!" he grumbled. "This is a fine job for a man—hatching out flowerpots!"

"It's going to be a man's job from here on!" she promised him. "This place is crawling with Germans, and Jacques is one of them. But they think I'm Lita. She's gone. I'll tell you more later, but right now you're repairing our roof. Follow me and don't talk until I give the sign."

She thrust a miscellany of tools into his hands and stepping outside, caught sight of another sentry. He was coming toward them along the walk on top of the wall. At sight of him, she did the only thing she could think of. She burst into a flow of voluble, abusive French, directed at Bright who was emerging at her heels. Bright gave her one stare of astonishment, and then, catching sight of the sentry, followed her meekly, his face sullen under his beret, as she led the way toward the castle. The young German, standing there above them on the sentry walk, grinned broadly, his flat face glistening in the late sun. He was plainly thinking that the red headed French woman was a regular top sergeant.

The chauffeur of the big car was awake now and was polishing the hood in a leisurely fashion. Recklessly determined to test her luck, Carol stopped beside him, Bright at her heels.

"Why do you not make yourself comfortable in our kitchen?" she asked the chauffeur in her halting German. The man flushed, clicked his heels, and came to attention.

"The gracious frau must know that is forbidden," he said wistfully. "I await the major's appearance at any minute."

"And you stay here hungry and thirsty, perhaps." Carol's tone was kindly. "Well, that shall not be in this house. We have roast goose. I shall send you out a tray by our servant."

The man blushed and stammered his thanks, overwhelmed by such consideration and Carol with a brief, friendly smile turned away. Bright followed her into the kitchen. Carol gave orders that Uhlan's driver be given food and beer. Then she indicated Bright.

"He is with us," she said. "One of those who are trying to liberate France. And this is Victorine," she added. "You can trust her implicitly. We may need her help badly and we'll get it, too."

Mme. Victorine exchanged a long look with Bright and apparently both were satisfied with their swift estimates. Then Victorine lifted her head and made a sign for silence. Footsteps were coming down the stone passage.

"It is Hans, the marshal's orderly," she whispered. She gestured toward a door in the far corner and Carol nodded.

The door to the servant's staircase had barely closed behind them when the orderly's thick voice could be heard in the kitchen demanding cold beer. At the first landing Bright drew a whistling breath.

"That was close!" he said. "What is all this, anyhow?"

"Just keep following me," she panted.

At the servant's quarters in the attic she paused and looked around cautiously before signaling him to come up.

"No one here right now," she said. "But we've got another jump to make."

The low wooden door ahead gave on to what had once been a major defense point of the castle. There were 17 century cannon at the stone battlements, placed there by the romantic Jacques, harmless and elegant relics of a more decorative age of armaments. The battlements themselves were high enough to conceal any one standing behind them. From this point the steep little town was not visible, and the castle seemed to be a part of the cliff on which it stood, ending in the blue water far below.

"Have you suddenly gone loco?" His deep blue eyes actually looked worried for a moment.

"I thought I had, the first time Jacques showed me this," she said, "but there really is an opening. Push the thing to the right."

He did so and a section of the seemingly solid wall swung around obliquely, leaving just sufficient space to let them pass thru into a small, low ceiling room, so low that Bright could hardly stand upright in it. There were no furnishings and only an arrow slit for light.

"Well I'll be hornswoggled!" he said. "So this is one of the trick places you were telling G. H. Q. about!"

"You haven't seen anything yet!" she told him. "There are enough trap doors, sliding panels and all that sort of equipment in Le Bastion to furnish the wildest melodrama comfortably. That's why Jacques bought it in the first place. He loves such things. In the old days when Saracen pirates raided the coast, the Villefranche women used to be walled in here with one man who had a sledge hammer to break a way out. Jacques had the pivot door put in so he could show the room more easily. You'd never guess it was here from the outside, would you?"

"Holy wildcats, no!" said Bright. She had to take the time to tell him everything she found out so far, making it brief, and trying to be calm. The passage thru the well which was the house's most prized attraction had not, apparently, been disclosed to the invaders.

"The papers have got to be there, under the parquet in the big room downstairs!" She was convincing herself as well as Bright when she said it. "You must wait until I bring them to you. I'll make a try tonight. It may be longer before I can get the chance to look, but the minute I can I'll bring them to you here or send them to you by Victorine."

"And then we'll hit the shortest trail out!"

"I'll get away as soon as I can, and meet you back at Brochard's" she said, steadying her voice. "But you mustn't wait there for me too long. If I don't show up within a reasonable time, you take the maps and go on back to Africa. Promise me, Bright!"

"You've handled this like a real Commando, Kansas," he said, and the admiration in his voice was a caress. "A lady Commando—that's something!"

"Promise me you won't do anything so foolish as to hang around here because of possible danger to me."

Legal Sorority States Case for Women in Jobs

Between discussions of mandamus actions, judicial sanctions, and termination clauses, members of Kappa Beta Pi, legal sorority, took time out yesterday to expound the cause first advocated by early suffragettes and demanded equal opportunity for business and professional women in the post-war era. The group is holding a three day conference in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Unlike the early advocates of equal rights for women, who wore bloomers and sailor hats, these modern Portias are proving that legal knowledge and chic are not necessarily strangers and that a dash of style never hurt a campaign.

They believe, according to Miss Margaret A. Mahoney, attorney and Ohio state senator, that rights of women workers should be protected by intelligent and comprehensive programs which women lawyers help formulate. Miss Mahoney said the number of women who want and need to work has increased enormously during the war and steps should be taken to make their jobs as secure as possible. There will be an even larger number of unmarried women who must carry on as wage earners after the war, she continued.

"No society can boast of democratic ideals if it utilizes its woman power in an emergency and neglects it when the crisis has passed," she declared, adding, however, that women must retain gains they have made thru efficiency as well as a program of job security.

Miss Mahoney said women are well suited to the legal profession, particularly in domestic relations and probate matters.

Delegates from seven midwest states, comprising the third province of the sorority, are attending the conference. Grace Rieger of Chicago, dean of the province, is chairman, and hostesses for the assembly include members of the Chicago alumnae and chapters at the Kent College of Law, Loyola, and DePaul universities, and the John Marshall Law school.

Teachers' Federation Council Opens Parley Preceding Convention

The executive council of the American Federation of Teachers began a three day series of meetings yesterday in the La Salle hotel preparatory to opening of the federation's annual convention in the La Salle Monday. National President Joseph F. Landis of Cleveland is in charge of council sessions.

The convention will continue thru Friday, with delegates expected from 300 federation units from coast to coast. The Chicago Teachers union, which claims 7,500 members and is the largest unit of the national organization, will be host to the convention.

The convention will give special emphasis to discussion of preventing juvenile delinquency in the post-war period, when children who have left school for war jobs may find themselves neither in jobs nor school, a spokesman said.

Lukas' Acting Distinguishes This War Film

"UNCERTAIN GLORY."

A Warner Brothers picture, directed by Raoul Walsh, starring Paul Lukas and Errol Flynn, and presented at the Chicago theater.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

In which a supposedly complete rogue proves, after fooling the audience for about an hour and a half, that he is, at heart, a Frenchman and a patriot.

Knowing he is supposed to have perished, he takes another name. . . .

There is, belonging to the French surete, an inspector of great astuteness and intuition. Picard has many times wriggled out of the nets in which Marcel Bonet has enmeshed him, but the latter has proved, without fail, to be uncannily able to predict the former's future activities and catch up with the prey. . . . So it is this time. A few brief days of freedom—in the company of a girl friend, stolen from under the nose of Jean's best man friend—and, click, there he is! Handcuffed again to Inspector Bonet!

At about this time a French saboteur blows up a bridge, resulting in the loss of Nazi lives and equipment. Word goes out that unless, by a certain time, the saboteur has been turned in an even hundred hostages shall lose their lives. . . .

Jean, with guile in his heart, proposes that he give himself up as the saboteur and sacrifice his worthless life for the many innocent ones of the prospective hostages. . . . Inspector Bonet isn't deceived for a minute. BUT——! Now captor and captive become involved in a series of strange adventures which must not be detailed if you are to get your money's worth out of the movie.

The main pull on your interest lies in the character drawing of Paul Lukas. He may not win an Academy award for his interpretation of Bonet, but he deserves to. With silence and a look he can whip your understanding to attention. He is, basically and emotionally, always right, always convincing.

Mr. Flynn, now, while clever, never succeeds in making you forget the props. . . . It is the Lukas touch that electrifies the scenes between the two men. Without it they would be just so much theater.

Competent in support are Jean Sullivan, Lucile Watson, and other intelligently chosen players. . . . The director managed to maintain considerable tension, tho there are episodes that are tiresomely padded for exploitation of the Flynn Histrionics.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Recently we talked about the inbetween boys and girls and how to handle situations which involved inattention, dawdling, and day-dreaming. Let's delve into the matter further today.

Forgetfulness and a faculty for losing things are other problems of this stage. Both these are signs that your child still is a child, and they are more apparent because you have grown less lenient and are expecting him to be more competent in handling matters than he is able to, at the moment. Just remember that this maturing process, as far as it affects efficiency, makes slow progress, and you must temper your demands, especially of the little child, where responsibilities are concerned.

Then there often is, more with boys than girls, I think, a dislike for school. This usually is due to the physical restriction that school represents. While their muscles and their spirits are demanding a more generous outlet than heretofore, they find themselves increasingly confined by longer school hours and more home work. And as lower marks pile up, it is natural that their dislike for school should increase. Under these circumstances, it is best to try to get the boy or girl to aim for at least passing marks, not letting the report card seem like a sentence of doom, and provide outdoor activity and interesting craft or art work to supplement the less interesting school work.

Then there's the group of actions all having a common cause, argumentativeness, impudence, defiance, and disobedience, which are the maturing child's growing sense of his own power, and a natural distaste for authority. This happens when we have not been wise enough to adjust our handling of him to his new status.

He is learning to think for himself and to act for himself, and needs greater physical freedom. Because these children still seem so young to us, we continue to treat them as infants. And this rebellion, this questioning, is their instinctive method of gaining the freedom they need for their own development. We must be wise, then, and loosen the apron strings, treat them more as adults and grant them—within reason, of course—more and more liberty.

Carroll Glenn Performs Violin Work Superbly

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

One of the most vivid performances of the summer's music was Carroll Glenn's of the Mendelssohn Concerto, played at Grant park last night with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky. I will not be so tactless as to remind you of the temperature, but if you remember last night, even with a lake breeze, you will know that playing the violin or any other instrument was not an enviable occupation. Yet Miss Glenn played with midwinter concentration, ignoring even the capricious wind from the south that can make life miserable in the bandshell.

It was not quite three seasons ago that this gifted girl got her big chance, playing the Sibelius Concerto under the direction of Frederick Stock. Even then, she had that curious concentration, invaluable to the artist, that can blot out everything but the performance itself. She had a good bowing arm, a round and plastic tone, and a kind of headlong impetuosity held in leash by sound respect for rhythmical structure. She still has all those things, and they are maturing into an exceptional freedom and clarity of style.

Her way with the Mendelssohn Concerto was singularly fresh, its few flaws easily blamed on the weather, its warmth, freedom, and clear singing line happily suited to one of the ageless works of the repertory, which needs only good performance to sound like remembered spring. The Bach prelude added as encore was by no means comparable. Here the impetuosity often bowled over the rhythmic structure, and the effect was minus Milstein, not to say hardly Heifetz.

The orchestra played the Mendelssohn expertly, fortunately refuting the announcer's remarks about "Mendelssohn's pastel tinted backgrounds," and Mr. Sevitzky introduced an interesting First Overture, which he commissioned last season for the Indianapolis Symphony from Gardner Read, the young Evanston composer who collects prizes. A traffic tangle left me outside while this was played, but the effect from there was admirable. A vivid, almost martial introduction and conclusion separated by a slow movement sung by strings and wind, it suggested that Mr. Read had something to say as well as the means to say it.

Despite the south wind, the orchestra tone carried better because the men had been reseated to better microphone advantage. Mr. Sevitzky's program also held Corelli's lovely Suite for Strings, which the orchestra could play in its sleep, but fortunately didn't, and a repetition of the Kalinnikoff Symphony, a not particularly distinguished work which must have been astonished to get two performances in an eight week season.

NORTH

♦ Q 10

WEST

♥ A 8 3
♦ A 7 6 2
♣ A K 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's raise may seem inexcusably light, but it was correct. A properly measured two no trump opening has a reasonable play for game with as little as North had—which, incidentally, was true in this case also.

West led the diamond four and declarer made an unlucky guess when he put up the queen. East covered, and South won. The ace and king of clubs dropped East's honors [which of course was an item on the lucky side of the ledger] and South then cashed the club nine. His next move was to throw West in with a diamond and let him take his three tricks in that suit. East discarded a spade and a heart, having let go a diamond on the third club. Now West, to give declarer as few leads up to his own hand as possible, exited with his fourth club.

The ten in dummy won, and declarer was very careful to discard a spade, not a heart, on this trick. He then took the spade finesse, which held. Finally, he led a low heart to dummy, and altho West promptly played low, declarer guessed correctly this time and went up with the queen. That was his ninth trick.

BARKLEY FACES HOT FIGHT FROM G.O.P. CANDIDATE

Kentucky Senate Race Considered Close.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 11.—Sen. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader of the senate, is facing the political fight of his life from James Park, commonwealth's attorney of Lexington, his Republican opponent for the senate.

Much of the machine strength that aided Barkley six years ago has evaporated. An August estimate finds the Republicans claiming that Park starts his campaign with an even chance of winning. Democrats reject this claim and speak of Barkley's vote getting prowess.

The state is traditionally Democratic, tho last November it elected a Republican governor, Simeon Willis, and other candidates for state office. This fall it is rated as doubtful.

Its tendency three months before election seems to be towards President Roosevelt, but some Republicans and Democrats figure it will follow the national trend if anything like a landslide develops either way.

G. O. P. Twice in 20 Years.

In the last 20 years it has gone Republican twice in Presidential elections. Coolidge carried it in 1924 and Hoover in 1928. Harding lost it by only 4,017 votes in 1920. Republicans say the G. O. P. can carry Kentucky this year "if the right kind of campaign is made."

In the senatorship contest, Park and the Republicans are not under estimating Barkley. They say he is a "tough turkey" in any election and an adept at political wiles.

Republicans concede that Barkley bolstered his fences by his speech denouncing President Roosevelt's tax bill veto. But they contend that the favorable reaction to his speech, his resignation as majority leader, and his subsequent reëlection to that office appears to have worn off.

When he was whistled to heel later, and proceeded to heap praise on the President, mass psychology made some Democrats balk at him. Later, after the White House turned thumbs down on him for Vice President and he nominated Roosevelt for a fourth term, sympathy rose a notch.

Park Popular Candidate.

Park is a lawyer, a farmer, and an athlete. His popularity is indicated by the five times he has been elected to office with majorities ranging up to 3,300 an area normally Democratic. He was born on a farm near Richmond, Ky., 51 years ago and was educated at the University of Kentucky.

For six years he was in professional baseball, except for time out in World War I, when he enlisted as a pilot in the army aviation branch. As an athlete he was on the football, baseball, and basketball teams of the University of Kentucky from 1911 to 1915, being football captain in 1914 and baseball captain in 1915.

After his discharge from the army in 1919, Park was athletic director and football coach of Transylvania college. He paid his way thru law school at the same time.

He coached Sen. Chandler of Kentucky when the latter played on the Transylvania football team. Chandler later became a coach at Versailles, Ky.

Pitched for Browns.

In professional baseball, Park was a pitcher in the Ohio State league, Western league, Pacific Coast league, American association, and American league [St. Louis Browns].

Park has served in the legislature, as Fayette county attorney, as a trustee of the University of Kentucky, and has been commonwealth's attorney here since 1928. This post is the equivalent of state's attorney in Illinois. He married Elizabeth J. Kimbrough of Cynthiana, Ky., and they have two sons, Ridgely, 17, and James Park Jr., 11.

As Park views it, the farm vote is a bulwark of strength for the Republicans in Kentucky. It was the basic element in the Republican sweep in the state 10 months ago. Estimates based on last November's vote lead him to the opinion that Kentucky can be carried by the G. O. P. if the right kind of fight is made.

F. D. R. Cool to Barkley.

In estimating Barkley's loss of machine power, Republicans recall that when he ran in 1938, President Roosevelt spoke in Kentucky in "Dear Alben's" behalf. This time, despite Barkley's nominating speech for the fourth term, the President is reported to regard him with a cold eye, despite the smile.

Then, too, in 1938 the New Deal poured PWA, WPA, and other funds into Kentucky, estimated at some 330 million dollars, to aid Barkley. It included the great Kentucky dam on the Tennessee river, some 20 miles above its mouth at Paducah, a project figured at 112 million dollars. This support will be lacking this time.

THE men on the Wheaton farm never have seen a PT boat in action, but they got a good imitation of these miniature dreadnaughts when the mallard ducklings dash across the farm swimming pool.

The four ducklings had prior rights to the use of the pool until the water was stocked with about 15 black bass and bluegills. After the fish were put into the water they made life miserable for the ducklings by pecking at their feet and breasts. Now the mallards walk all over the lawn and into other pools, but they stay away from the swimming tank to avoid the bass and bluegill brigands.

Like PTs in Action.

The other day we helped the gardener herd the mallards into the swimming pool, and the four ducklings churned the water into a white foam in their frantic efforts to get across the water with all possible speed, like PT boats in action.

The antics of the mallards in the swimming tank provided the farm workers with a debating subject the other day—on the feeding habits of various species of waterfowl, with major emphasis on the point of diving ducks as contrasted with puddler ducks.

The farm mallards, as well as pintail, teal, and most other species which duck hunters see in marshes and river backwaters, are classed as puddler ducks or surface-feeding ducks, because they feed either on the water surface, or by tipping their beaks thru shallow water to feed on vegetable matter within a few inches of the surface.

Divers Feed Deeply.

Diving ducks, as their name implies, feed while submerged in from two to ten feet of water and usually inhabit large bodies of water. Included in this clan are the inland divers, such as the canvasback, redhead, scaups, and ruddy ducks. The sea divers, some of which may be seen on Lake Michigan during their migrating seasons, include the goldeneye, bufflehead, Old Squaw, elders, and scoters, all of which feed primarily on seafoods such as molluscs and crustaceans.

Canada geese which occasionally drop into the farm ponds can feed in shallow water in the manner of puddler ducks, but they also graze in grain fields and pastures. The swans which used to live on the farm ponds might be called "tippers," since their natural method of feeding is by stretching their long necks to the bottoms of shallow ponds for vegetable food.

★The GARDEN★

SAP-FEEDING beetles occasionally will infest sweet corn as well as field corn, appearing in such numbers that gardeners fear they will destroy the crops. The insects are comparatively harmless and cannot be effectively combatted because of their habit of feeding in protected places. They are black, about 1/32d of an inch long, and have orange spots near the front of their shells and yellow spots near the base of the shells.

Sap-feeding beetles are secondary insects in that they always enter channels previously made by other insects. In corn they may follow either the corn borer or the ear worm. They also may be seen in other vegetables and fruits already attacked by other insects. It is an error to assume that the sap-feeding beetles damage corn or other crops, since they merely follow insects which previously attacked the plants. Unless these primary insects can be found and identified there is little to be gained by spraying the sap-feeding beetles.

GOV. GREEN ASKS WAR WORKERS TO STAY ON JOBS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 11 (AP).—Illinois war workers were urged today by Gov. Green to "stay on the job" to fill the navy's increasing production needs.

"While the changing requirements of modern warfare have caused reduction or cancellation of some contracts, the navy's over-all requirements are growing larger," the governor's statement said. "The last six months of this year are expected to show a greater production of navy supplies and munitions than the first six months," he said he was informed by the navy.

"I urge every navy production worker in our state to stay on the job. Back up our navy—prepare it to pour its cumulative might on Japan."

MAP G.O.P. DRIVE IN CITY TO WIN HOUSE CONTROL

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

White collar workers were challenged yesterday to seize their opportunity to give the country a Republican house of representatives by their efforts in Chicago alone. They were told it is up to them to overcome the political blitz being staged by communist-dominated hordes of the CIO political action committee and vassal organizations.

The Business Men's committee is sponsoring the new drive. It sponsored the first of a series of rallies yesterday before 200 insurance company executives and employes at 175 W. Jackson blvd.

Successful in 1940, the B. M. C. achieved the largest Republican vote increase in Illinois in Chicago's 16 river wards.

Three Seats Mean Control.

Now the set task is to concentrate B. M. C. efforts in five congressional districts of Chicago. Two Republicans won in 1942 by close margins—Rep. Busbey in the 3d district and Rep. Dewey in the 9th. Three Republicans lost in the 1st, 2d, and 7th districts by a total of 7,300 out of more than 600,000 votes.

Republicans only need to hold their present ground and win three seats now held by Chicago Democrats to obtain control of the house. That would give the G. O. P. selection of the speaker, and the chairman and majority of every committee.

To business the B. M. C. presents the following simple "formula for preserving opportunity":

"All government bureaus require money. All government competition with business requires money. The house of representatives controls all appropriations of money. Therefore the house has the power of life and death over all New Deal agencies.

Hear "Brass Tacks" Talks.

"A Republican house can enable a Republican President to clean house of the alphabetical burocracy. Or it can prevent a reëlected New Deal administration from continuing to wreck our American system."

Insurance workers heard brass tacks talks from B. M. C. leaders: Henry Pope Jr., chairman; Frank J. Durham, vice chairman; Wade Fetzer Jr. of the finance committee, and Fred C. Bracken, head of the insurance division.

"The Democratic party under Sidney Hillman of the CIO is out to put you and me out of business," Fetzer said. "Our lives and futures hang on this election. It is up to you to get into this fight and win."

Congressman Busbey, No. 1 on the purge list of the CIO-PAC, said: "This is your last chance. You have got to fight in the precincts as they do or give way to a political and economic dictatorship."

2 Boys' School Inmates Flee; Freedom Is Brief

Two youths took advantage of fields of tall corn to escape from a farm colony haying detail at the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles yesterday. But their liberty was short lived. Two hours later they were apprehended by Geneva police and school guards. Charles W. Reed, assistant managing officer, said the boys were William Turner, 16, sent to the school last January from Alton, and Frank Sanders, 16, committed last September from Joliet.

SGT. F. D. CORCORAN, 38 YEARS ON FORCE, TO QUIT ON BIRTHDAY

Sgt. Francis D. Corcoran of 7828 Jeffery av., who will be 63 years old Aug. 17, will retire from the police force on that date after 38 years of service. Corcoran, who has worn the stripes of a police sergeant for more than 30 years, has held that position longer than any man in the history of the department, according to police records.

Sgt. Corcoran.

Now attached to the Grand Crossing station, Sgt. Corcoran has served in almost every station on the south side. He has won five creditable mentions and one extra compensation, and in 1930 received honorable mention for The Tribune award for heroism. His outstanding feat was the capture in 1929 of an armed bandit who had robbed guests at a house party in the neighborhood of 99th and Throop sts.

Corcoran said he plans a short vacation with his wife, Nell, 61, immediately after his retirement. Then he will take one of a number of jobs which have been offered him

Butler Wants to 'Unfreeze' Federal Employes' Jobs

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—Sen. Butler [R., Neb.] announced today that he will press for immediate action on an amendment to the social security act to prohibit any official or agency of the government from hindering or preventing a civilian federal employe from leaving to take a job in private industry. Butler said several government employes have complained they have had offers from private firms for larger salaries but their agencies declined to give them letters of availability and they were forced to stay in government jobs.

HIGHLAND PARK CLUB IS FORMED TO BACK DEWEY

A new force behind Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's presidential campaign in the Chicago area is the organization of the Highland Park's Men's Republican club. It will hold the first of a series of public forums for political discussion in the community center of the suburb Monday night. The speaker will be J. Frank Rushton Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce of Birmingham, Ala., and a leader among southern industrialists who have turned to the support of Gov. Dewey in an effort to scotch the New Deal.

Rushton has been a life-long Democrat and is connected in Birmingham with the office of price administration and the war production board, but will follow the Republican nominee to help rescue the nation from the New Deal-Communist grip.

The Highland Park Men's Republican club was incorporated Aug. 1 with Harold O. McLain, Chicago business man, as president. "Our first objective is to help elect Thomas E. Dewey President," McLain said yesterday. "We expect to have 1,000 to 1,500 members by Nov. 1."

SILOAM SPRINGS PARK FUND NOW READY: GREEN

Mendon, Ill., Aug. 11 (AP).—Gov. Green said tonight $325,000 has been earmarked for post-war development of Siloam Springs state park, a 1,600 acre tract in Adams and Brown counties.

Planned improvements include overnight cabins, an artifical lake, access roads, picnic and parking area water supply, and a wild life refuge, the governor said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Adams county fair here.

Post-war highway projects costing $280,000 are proposed in Adams county, where $275,000 has been spent by the state on road improvements during the war, he added.

Earlier today the governor told a crowd at the Logan county fair at Lincoln that post-war improvements on the St. Louis to Chicago route 66 in the county would cost about $3,300,000.

Two veteran stork chasers from Damen avenue police station put in a banner day yesterday by assisting three babies into the world. Policemen Herman Stolke and Joseph P. Young, who started their day with scores of 30 and 15 deliveries, respectively, responded at 8:30 a. m. to a call in behalf of Mrs. Ruth Semple, 31, at 1742 School st.

One baby had been born. Stolke handed it to Young, then assisted in the birth of the twin. The mother and babies were taken to St. Joseph's hospital. One twin, a girl, weighed 6 pounds, 14 ounces, and her brother 3 ounces less. Mrs. Semple has two other children, boys 11 and 2. Her husband, Robert, 30, is overseas in the navy.

Stolke and Young thought delivering twins made it a red letter day, but were called again in the afternoon. This time Mrs. Agnes Dienhart, 33, of 1623 Byron st., asked to be taken to Walther Memorial hospital. But the stork was hasty again, and Stolke and Young delivered a girl in their patrol wagon.

NINE MISSISSIPPI ELECTORS AGREE TO BACK F.D.R.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 11 (AP).—Mississippi's nine Democratic Presidential electors, left free agents by the state convention, agreed today to support the Roosevelt-Truman ticket but eight of them reserved the right to change their minds.

The electors were named prior to the Democratic national convention. The state convention left them free to make their own Presidential choice if the national convention failed to meet several Mississippi demands involving racial and state's rights questions. The demands were not met.

The Mississippi state Democratic executive committee conferred with the electors today. After the session Judge Herbert Holmes, committee chairman, announced that Judge R. C. Russell of Magee pledged unqualified support to the Roosevelt-Truman ticket. The other eight, Judge Holmes said, agreed to vote in the electoral college for Roosevelt and Truman "unless something occurs between now and time for us to cast our votes which would make it contrary or inimicable to the best interests of the people of Mississippi for us to do so."

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Twelve of the fleetest 3 year olds on the premises at Washington Park are ready to face the barrier today in the $18,250 Dick Welles handicap, a mile event which first was won by Alsab in 1942 and last year by Occupation.

The prospective field is headed by Calumet farm's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Pensive, under top weight of 124 pounds, and his stablemate, Miss Keeneland, victor in the Cleopatra handcap, but turfmen expect to see Allen Drumheller's Sirde go to the post the probable favorite at odds of 5 to 2.

Nears 6 Furlong Record.

Sirde, a Washington bred colt, was just one-fifth of a second off Three Dot's record for three-quarters of a mile in winning the Battleship handicap on July 20, negotiating the distance in 1:10 1-5 and whipping Jules Fink's African Sun, John Marsch's Occupy and three others.

The race shapes up as one of the best of the coördinated Arlington-Washington Park meeting, for the remainder of the field includes Walmac farm's Old Kentuck, second to the brilliant Calumet filly, Twilight Tear, in the rich Arlington Classic. Old Kentuck will be coupled with Native Fox and The Man as the R. W. McIlvain entry. Then there is Coward and Du Puy's two horse entry of Doggone and Appleknocker, John Marsch's Jezrahel, Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue, Mrs. V. E. Smith's Sirius, and Al Sabath's American Flyer.

Daily Double Pays $257.

Yesterday's daily double refund was $257. Frank Butzow's Miss Observer, with McCreary up, scored her first victory in a six furlong sprint for maiden 2 year olds and paid $40.20 and then Billy Nichols booted in Mrs. Otto Bagley's Scotch Bread at $13.80 in the second race.

Hal Price Headley's Letmenow, with Tony Skoronski up, accounted for the day's feature, the $3,000 Aneroid handicap at a mile and a furlong. Letmenow, a 3 year old filly, led all the way and scored by two and one-half lengths over Mr. and Mrs. Ed McEvoy's Paragram, which finished five lengths in front of T. D. Taggart's Best Birthday. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Signals Bloke, the favorate, ran last in a five horse field.

STAN PATRICK NAMED COACH AT DE LA SALLE

Stan Patrick, University of Illinois basketball player last year, was named football and basketball coach at De La Salle High school, it was announced yesterday by Brother Austin, F. S. C. Patrick replaces Joe [Red] Gleason, who resigned last March to succeed A. L. [Whitey] Cronin in a similar capacity at Leo High school.

Stan Patrick.

Patrick will take charge when the football team reports for its opening practice session on Aug. 16. He starred in all sports at Leo High school, graduating in 1940, and continued his athletic career for three years at Santa Clara university. On receiving a medical discharge from the navy, Stan enrolled for his final year of competition at Illinois. He was graduated in June.

Friends.

Life's joys should not be measured
By the things we may possess,
And the plaudits of the public
Do not always spell success.
There's more to life than money,
More than stocks or bonds, and such.
For when it comes to leave this sphere,
They may not count for much.

Tho some may bask in riches,
And can dwell on Easy street,
I somehow think of other things,
I feel are hard to beat.
And when one counts his blessings
As down life's way he wends,
Surpassing all, it seems to me,
Are folks we know as friends.

Poetry lives in a rustling tree;
In words like mother and melody.
In a lone wildflower, strangely born,

In diamonds reflected on winter snows.

Its charm, for those eyes that cannot see,
Lies in the strains of a symphony.
For poetry doesn't depend on rhyme;
Its beauty surrounds us all the time.

Paupers can share them, as well as kings.
Daily they offer to you and me

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

At the insistence of the no-longer helpful Dodgers, the recently boisterous Cubs continued yesterday with their alarming retreat from the immediate vicinity of the first division. Charley Grimm's unpredictables tried hard enough, even getting back into a tie when Bill Nicholson hit his 26th nonstop blow with two out in the ninth, but this merely delayed the Brooklyns. They came up with a run in the eleventh off Rescuer Bob Chipman for a 7 to 6 score that marked the Chicagoans' fifth straight beating.

The 6,650 cash patrons and 5,800 women guests, at least, saw a reasonable facsimile of a pitchers' parade. Bill Fleming started for the Cubs, but it was necessary to send Paul Erickson to his aid before the second inning was completed, and the rescuer fared none too well. Meanwhile, the Cubs were doing what little they could to Ben Chapman, ex-outfielder turned pitcher at the ripe age of 35. Benny finally had to leave under pressure in the seventh.

Webber Gets the Credit.

Les Webber, the winner, took charge in the eighth when the Cubs floundered helplessly after filling the bases with none out against Calvin McLish, and in the ninth Boss Grimm decided that there was still a chance so he summoned Bob Chipman, his left handed refugee from Brooklyn. The southpaw handled his ex-associates without trouble for two innings but, when Barney Koch opened the 11th with a single, it was the beginning of the end. Chipman held them off long enough to collect the second out, after which Lou Olmo let go with a single that chased in the K. O. run.

Chapman's work for the day started with a pass to Stan Hack and a single by Roy Hughes and, after Phil Cavarretta had fanned, Nicholson was passed. Happily, Andy Pafko singled with two out to fix the Cubs with a 2 to 1 lead, the Dodgers having scored in their first inning on Augie Galan's double and Paul Waner's single.

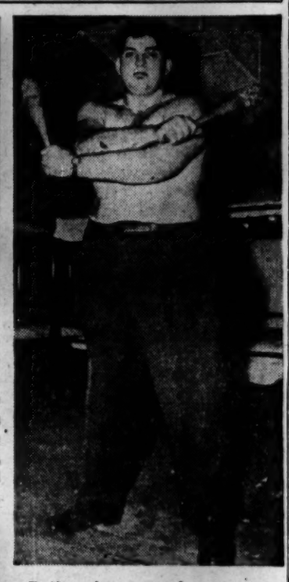
Dodgers Fight Back.

This was changed when Howie Schultz and Mickey Owen led off with singles in the second. A wild pitch scored one of them and Goody Rosen singled the other home, giving the Dodgers a 3 to 2 edge and eliminating Fleming.

Dom Dallessandro's triple with an infield out, boosted the Cubs back into a tie in the fourth, but this lasted only until Galan could bounce a homer past a somersaulting Dallessandro in the fifth. However, Erickson discovered a way in which to create another tie. He exploded a homer into the left field seats, his first of the year, in the same inning. Then with one out Hughes walked, went to third on an infield out, and nonchalantly stole home for his 14th theft. This made it 5 to 4.

Passes to Schultz and Jack Bolling in the sixth, followed by Chapman's double, produced two Dodger runs.

NATION'S BEST AWAIT COACHES' CALL



Tho both of them insist they'd prefer to be out on the practice field getting ready for the game with the powerful Chicago Bears on Aug. 30, Steve Van Buren (left) and Tom Hughes settle for a game of cards on a cot in the All-Stars' Dyche stadium quarters. Steve, one of the nation's top scoring backs for Louisiana State last fall, and Tom, a stalwart Purdue tackle, were among early arrivals yesterday.

Roy McKay, University of Texas full back is mighty proud of his ornamental boots, but he'll gladly lay them aside when Coach Lynn Waldorf holds the first All-Star practice today in the stadium.

Believe it or not, those are regulation size Indian clubs which Jim Kekeris, Missouri tackle is swinging. They look like miniatures only because of Jim's bulk—he weighs 290 pounds.

SOX SCORE TWO IN 9TH TO BEAT BOSTON, 9 TO 7

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—The White Sox no longer have a chance to tie the world record for road chumps in a regulation 154 game season. They beat the Red Sox this afternoon, 9 to 7, on two runs in the ninth, the victory margin being achieved on a single by Wally Moses and four straight passes after two were out.

The triumph was the first for Chicago in Boston this year and they have a chance here tomorrow to make it two before saying adieu for the year. Instead of tying the record by being blanked all season, the Sox can wind up no worse, for instance, than the 1943 Athletics, who won only one game in Chicago.

Starters Didn't Last.

The Chicago Sox got three runs in the first inning on singles by Moses and Le Roy Schalk, a pass to John Dickshot and a triple by Ralph Hodgin, but Humphries couldn't hold the edge and the Red Sox went ahead, 5 to 3, with two runs in the second and three in the third, whereupon Humphries surrendered for Buck Ross.

Each team scored in the fourth and the Chicago Sox went ahead, 7 to 6, with three runs in the seventh, produced on singles by Skeeter Webb and Ross, a pass which loaded the bases, an error by Jim Tabor, and two infield outs.

Johnson's Homer Ties Score.

With one out in the Boston seventh, Bob Johnson, a right handed hitter, knocked a homer into the bull pen beyond right field, an area rarely reached by the best left handed hitters. This tied the score at 7 to 7, the count which prevailed going into the ninth.

Moses opened the ninth with a single to center and got to third on Schalk's sacrifice and Dickshot's infield out. Then Clem Hausmann walked Ralph Hodgin, Carnett, and Thurman Tucker for one run.

Miss Otto and Germain Meet in Golf Final

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Two 20 year old collegians, Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia and Phyllis Otto of Omaha, today will play in the 36 hole final match for the 44th annual amateur championship of the Women's Western Golf association over Lake Forest's Onwentsia club course.

For the sturdy, blonde Miss Otto, who has just finished a two year course at Christian college in Columbia, Mo., and plans to enter Stanford university, this will be the second important test of her career. Two years ago she finished as runner-up to Betty Jameson for the W. W. G. Open title at Elmhurst. The current event marks only her second attempt at the amateur crown.

Wins by 7 and 6 Score.

Yesterday she made sure of a place in the finals by defeating the comely and able Georgia Tainter of Phyllis Otto.

Dorothy Germain.

Fargo, N. D., 7 and 6. She scored an even par for the 12 holes played.

Miss Germain, who presently will enter her junior year at Beaver college in Jenkintown, Pa., has even more important objectives. There is, of course, the matter of defeating Phyllis today. Both have played 56 holes out of a possible 72 since match play began last Tuesday morning. Dorothy is seven over par, yielding four strokes to the card yesterday while eliminating the Chicago district's last survivor, Mrs. H. M. Sims of Evanston, 4 and 3. Phyllis has a record of eight over par for the same distance.

Miss Germain has the opportunity to become the first woman in 12 years to score a consecutive double

HOPTOWIT AND SIGILLO REPORT AT BEARS' CAMP

Call for Musicians

MUSICIANS who wish to join the College All-Star band, which will appear in Dyche stadium the night of the All-Star game, Aug. 30, are asked to communicate with Ray Dvorak, director of bands at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Collegeville, Ind., Aug. 11.—Dom Sigillo and Al Hoptowit, the Chicago Bears' probable starters at tackle against the College All-Stars the night of Aug. 30 in Northwestern's Dyche stadium, arrived at the club's training camp this evening in time to partake of a hearty meal.

George Musso, the celebrated thick man who has played 11 seasons for the Bears, and Ray Nolting, who has been with the team for seven campaigns, are due to report Monday. This leaves only two candidates for the missing persons bureau—Andy Grant, a 240 pound tackle who has played at Purdue, and Ensign Sid Luckman, the quarter back. Maybe they'll show up, maybe they won't.

Plan to Fatten 'Em Up.

At any rate, the Bears' three little quarter backs, all of whom will be fattened up at a thin man's training table to be inaugurated tomorrow in the dining room, had a busy morning and afternoon today. The trio—Bill Glenn of Charleston [Ill.] Teachers and the Newark Bears, Al Grygo of the University of South Carolina, and John Anton Long from Colgate and the Newark Bears—each engineered a back field which went thru running and passing plays.

Glenn's back field mates were Wally Baucke, a noncollegian from

WALDORF WILL MEET SQUAD IN DYCHE STADIUM

Early Arrivals Set Up Quarters.

Meet the Stars

THE Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago will hold its annual All-Star football luncheon in the Morrison hotel Thursday, Aug. 24. This will be the only public appearance of the college squad prior to the game with the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium Aug. 30. Luncheon tickets, at $1.90 each, now are on sale in The Tribune Public Service offices and at the Junior Association of Commerce headquarters, 1 N. La Salle st.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[ALL-STAR ROSTER ON NEXT PAGE.]

This is the day the All-Star football players of 1944 begin training for the game with the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, in Dyche stadium Aug. 30. From this afternoon, when Head Coach Lynn Waldorf and his assistants supervise the opening drill, the college men will have as their goal a victory to match last year's stirring triumph over the Washington Redskins.

The All-Stars' task is formidable, for any college squad is an underdog in this annual battle with expert professionals. While the Bears have lost several veterans, a nucleus remains around which the champions will build a potent eleven as drills at St. Joseph's [Ind.] college indicate.

Bears Hold Three Victories.

In the 10 preceding games sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., the collegians have won three, lost five and tied two. Three of the five victories by the professional champions have been scored by the Bears, who also inaugurated the series with a scoreless tie in 1934. The Bears' perfect record in itself should be sufficient incentive for the All-Stars.

Altho practice does not open officially until today, 11 All-Stars, headed by Steve Van Buren of Louisiana and Ralph Park of Texas, a pair of deft half backs, had checked in at Dyche stadium before dinner call. Following last year's pattern, because Northwestern's facilities have largely been taken over by navy trainees, the All-Stars will have quarters in the stadium.

Chicago's heat wave made little impression on these southerners and Van Buren even ventured a snide remark about "what heat wave?" Even at the risk that Baton Rouge, La., papers might copy, Steve believes Chicago doesn't know hot weather.

Service Men Will Report Late.

Park reported from Austin, Tex., site of his alma mater, and he and Van Buren undoubtedly will do a lot of passing and running beginning today. More than half of the squad will report today to Waldorf and all except a score of service men will be in uniform for tomorrow's double drill.

Other arrivals yesterday were Bob Elgelberger, Missouri, and Loren La Prade, Stanford, guards; Tom Hughes, Purdue tackle, and Dub Wooten, Oklahoma end. Five players had preceded these men, having reported late Thursday night. This group included Roy McKay, Texas full back; Sgt. Paul Sizemore, Furman end, and three Missouri players, Jack Morton, end; James Kekeris, tackle, and William Dellastatious, half back. Hughes, Kekeris, and Dellastatious are undergraduates.

Sgt. Sizemore of Camp Gruber, Okla., like McKay, was a member of the All-Star team which defeated the Redskins last year, 27 to 7. Billy Andrews, University of Texas student football manager, also is in the All-Star camp. This is Billy's third year as manager of the college squad.

They'll Bid for Line Jobs.

The All-Star coaches—Bo McMillin, Indiana; Jeff Cravath, Southern California; Henry Franka, Tulsa, and Waldorf—will huddle immediately to approve plans for development of the squad.

The college group lost one of its centers, William Baughman of Iowa, yesterday. Baughman played two years at Alabama before entering Iowa last fall. He has been ordered by his draft board to report for induction Aug. 28.

Yankee Wins in 2d Race for Lipton Trophy

Ed Schnabel Sr., three times winner of the Sir Thomas Lipton trophy for R class yachts, won the second race yesterday in the Chicago Yacht club's annual three day series for the trophy. Skipper Schnabel sailed his 37 foot sloop Yankee to beat Thursday's winner, Gale, by 18 seconds. Gale was sailed by its new owner, Harry Nye Jr., defender of the trophy.

Both Yankee and Gale lost their 1,200 square foot parachute spinnakers five minutes after the start off Belmont harbor. A 30 mile gust of wind ripped the light sails out of their fastenings, and the two crews replaced them with smaller reaching spinnakers.

Sox Finally Win in Boston; Score Is 9 to 7

At Last!

George Woods went in and walked Pinch-batter Hal Trosky for the second run of the Sox's decisive margin.

It was Ross' second decision of the year in American league competition, also his second over the Red Sox, he having won in Chicago on July 21, after the Bostons had been stopped for the first time on July 19. Tomorrow Ed Lopat and Joe Bowman will hook up in the Chicagoans' 1944 farewell to dear old sweltering Boston. They will go to New York where the competitive strain hasn't been so great this season.

ANDERSSON AND HAGG WIN, BUT NO MARKS FALL

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 11 (AP).—Gunder Hagg, Sweden's speedy fireman, fought a strong wind today as he pounded thru 3,000 meters in 8:07.6, almost six seconds slower than his own world record for the distance.

The same wind, plus a field of eight handicap runners, hampered Arne Andersson, who recently lowered the record for the mile to 4:01.6, to the extent that he was timed in 3:49.8 for 1,500 meters.

STANDARD OIL (IND.) PROFIT TOPS YEAR AGO

Link-Belt Earnings Dip in 6 Months.

Standard Oil company [Ind.] in the first half of 1944 had consolidated net profit of $27,868,559, equal to $1.82 per share, Edward G. Seubert, president, reported yesterday. In the first six months of 1943, profit was $22,079,417, or $1.44 a share.

The company set aside $9,903,451 for federal income taxes and $4,229,967 for excess profits taxes this year. Seubert said the provisions for adjustments in the renegotiation of contracts did not materially affect the 1944 earnings.

Net Income Is $1.33 a Share.

Link-Belt company, Chicago, had net income of $1,042,259, equal to $1.33 per share, in the six months ended June 30. This was after provision of $6,837,520 for federal and Canadian taxes, but before an estimated post-war tax refund of $585,000. The company earned $1,181,216, or $1.53 a share, a year earlier. All figures excluded operations of the Link-Belt Ordnance company, a subsidiary.

Sales in the half year amounted to $37,420,587, against $37,160,913 a year earlier. Total assets rose to $28,451,506 from $26,463,416 in the year ended June 30.

Paramount Reports Gains.

Paramount Pictures, Inc., reported net income in the quarter ended July 1 was $4,081,000, equal to $1.09 per share, compared with $3,827,000, or $1.02 a share, a year earlier. In the six months ended July 1, profits were $7,895,000, equal to $2.10 per share, against $7,387,000, or $1.97 a share, in the corresponding 1943 period.

Paramount directors authorized the borrowing of 6 million dollars thru issuance of unsecured notes maturing 1 million dollars annually, 1945 to 1950. The proceeds, as necessary, will be loaned by Paramount to its subsidiary, Paramount Broadway corporation, so the subsidiary may redeem its first mortgage sinking fund loan certificates.

LARGER CIGARET SUPPLIES HELD UNLIKELY SOON

Little hope for easing the scarcity of popular brand cigarets was held yesterday by dealers, to whom supplies are allocated by manufacturers.

The scarcity has resulted from an increasing volume of shipments overseas and from the smaller warehouse inventories of cigaret tobacco. A trade survey estimated overseas shipments this year will be approximately 70 billion cigarets, or about double last year's shipments. Tobacco inventories were estimated equivalent to 20 to 23 months' supply, compared with a normal 36 month stock.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Bretton Woods agreement for monetary stabilization will fail to receive the approval of congress because the international fund plan seeks to substitute "managed currency" for the tried and tested gold and silver standards," Sen. Scrugham [D., Nev.] predicted today.

Sues Morgan, 33 Others for 100 Millions

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 11 (AP).—A stockholder of the United corporation, one of the nation's largest holding companies, has sued J. P. Morgan & Co. and 33 other defendants for 100 million dollars, charging United corporation funds were "wrongfully wasted" in intercompany dealings.

The suit was filed in the United States District court in Delaware by Edward R. Downing, who described himself as "a resident of Massachusetts" and holder of 2,500 shares of United capital stock.

Others May Join in Suit.

In a bill in equity, he said he sued in his own behalf and in behalf of other stockholders "who may elect to come in and contribute to the expense of this action."

The securities and exchange commission on Aug. 14, 1943, ordered United to recapitalize on a single stock basis and cease to be a holding company.

Defendants beside J. P. Morgan & Co. include United itself, several Morgan partners, Commercial Enterprises corporation, Thorne, Loomis & Co., and executors of five estates.

Asks Individual Accounting.

Downing asked:

1. That individual defendants who were and are officers and directors of United account for their acts and conduct and "for all the monies, assets, and property which were wrongfully, improperly, and negligently wasted, expended, diverted, and lost, and that they be directed to pay over and restore any and all sums of money thus accounted for."

2. That all the remaining defendants account to United for the losses and damages in excess of 100 million dollars and "pay to United the amount of said damages and losses."

Morgan Refuses Statement.

New York, Aug. 11 [Special].—Officials of J. P. Morgan & Co. said today they had no statement to make on the lawsuit filed against the bank. Most of the other defendants were out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Randolph Phillips, who for two years has been waging proxy battles against the United corporation as a minority stockholder, identified Edward R. Downing, who filed the suit in the Delaware court, as one of his "nominees" in a recent proxy fight against the Superpower corporation, and that he and Downing had been associated for the last two years in the fight against United.

RETAIL TRADE UP FOR WEEK, YEAR; CLOTHING GAINS

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Retail trade increased this week and was 8 to 12 per cent above a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet said today in a review of business that showed encouraging trends in other indexes.

"Interest in fall apparel lines rose as cooler weather helped boost sales of coats, woolen dresses, and fall sportswear," the agency said. "Final clearances of summer goods were well received. Limited stocks of furniture and other housewares held down sales in these departments."

Minnesota Utilities Asks Right to Sell Properties

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 11 (AP).—Minnesota Utilities company, Minneapolis, asked the securities and exchange commission today to approve its sale of electric and steam properties for $625,000 to Northern States Power company, Minneapolis, Minnesota, a wholly owned subsidiary of American Utilities Service corporation, Savanna, Ill., would dissolve after the sale.

DISCOVER THREE NEW OIL POOLS IN JULY DRILLING

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 11 (AP).—Three new oil pools, five possible extensions, and four new producing sands in pools resulted from July drilling activities in Illinois, the state geological survey reported today. July production was estimated at 205,000 barrels a day compared with 207,000 barrels in June.

The new pools are in Edwards, Jasper, and White counties. "Wildcat" drilling indicated possible extensions in Wayne, Edwards, and Madison county pools. New production strata were reported in Wabash, Edwards, and White counties.

A total of 223 wells was completed in July and 132 were producers. Average initial production was 106 barrels a well compared with 104 in June.

EXPECTS SUGAR RATION INTO '46 FOR INDUSTRIES

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Rationing of sugar to industrial users thru 1945 and possibly for the larger part of 1946 was predicted today by Ody H. Lamborn, sugar broker.

"The maintenance of rationing after the war does not mean necessarily that industrial users would be held to 70 to 80 per cent sugar allotments," Lamborn said. He suggested that the government might try to increase the allotment to "at least 100 per cent of 1941 use."

He said the only way of improving the situation would be for the government to encourage increased sugar production, recommending a price rise as the most effective method.

Foote Brothers Plant Sets Record for Safety

More than 3 million man hours without lost time because of accidents or injuries was the record reported yesterday by Paul Brollier, safety director of Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation, 5225 S. Western av. The record, dating back to Feb. 9, was made at plant three.

Year's Savings Exceed Spending

Despite a record outlay by the public last year for goods and services, savings exceeded spending for the second time in history, Life Insurance Companies in America reported yesterday. Savings by the public increased a record 21 billion dollars in 1943, the organization said.

Consumer expenditures last year rose to 91 billion dollars, an increase of 9 billions above the previous record in 1942. Accumulated individual savings rose to 95 billion 420 millions from 74 billion 510 millions in 1942. Last year's total was equal to 105 per cent of consumer expenditures, compared with a ratio of 91 per cent in 1942, the group said.

Savings on Downswing in 1932.

The only previous instance when savings exceeded expenditures was in 1932. The situation was different then, however, with savings declining and consumer spending at a record low.

"At the end of 1932 accumulated savings were 44 billion 80 million dollars and consumer expenditures were 43 billions, making the ratio 102 per cent," the organization said. "However, this situation developed as a result of a 'belt tightening' economy and not an expanding one as at present.

Drop in Spending Larger.

"Accumulated savings decreased more than 4 billion dollars, but consumer expenditures slumped 21 billions in 1932, approximately a third of the 1931 total. Thus the fall in consumer spending was so large that it made the total of accumulated savings bigger than the year's consumer expenditures."

The organization said the current backlog of record individual accumulated savings is important from a post-war point of view. Tho these savings are only partly in quickly spendable form, the average consumer under ordinary circumstances will tend to spend more freely than he would without such savings, it asserted.

G. M. Strike Ended; Other Tieups Start

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11 (AP).—Strikers who have tied up production at five plants of Chevrolet gear and axle division of General Motors corporation voted tonight to return to work Monday, submitting to a war labor board order.

The vote to end the four day strike, precipitated by G. M.'s dismissal of seven men for their part in last week's walkout, was announced as 90 per cent in the affirmative by Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers.

Stormy hearings before both the regional and national war labor boards had preceded tonight's mass-meeting of members of local 235 of the UAW, and concern had been expressed as to whether the back-to-work order would be heeded. Vehement opposition was expressed before the meeting.

Approximately 2,300 of the local's 7,000 members attended the mass-meeting behind closed doors. Reuther said they demanded a "guarantee" of no more firings.

Gave No Guarantee, But—.

"I gave them no guarantee," Reuther said. "However, I did say in view of all the facts in the case I didn't think that General Motors would dare to fire any more because of the possibilities of public opinion."

There was no immediate comment from General Motors.

Unionists had charged that G. M. "provoked" the second strike by the firings, and G. M. charged the union with being "irresponsible."

Chevrolet production of parts for Pratt & Whitney engines, was halted a second time Tuesday when a strike followed word of the firing of the seven men. The company said the men were discharged for "fomenting" the walkout the preceding week in a dispute over increased production rates.

New Strike at Canton.

Canton, Ill., Aug. 11 [Special].—Operations at the International Harvester company's Canton plant were virtually halted today by the second strike in 10 days which made all except 250 of the 1,900 employes idle.

1,400 Strike in Dubuque.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 11 [Special].—Approximately 1,400 employes of three Dubuque woodworking plants went on strike today in protest against the delay of the WLB in reaching a decision on issues between the union and the companies. The companies affected all have large war orders.

700 Stay Away from Jobs.

Wausau, Wis., Aug. 11 [Special].—Nearly 700 employes of the woodworking plant of George Silbernagel and Sons company, remained away from their jobs today in protest over the WLB's failure to reach an early decision in matters involving employment and management.

End Plane Plant Strike.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 11 [Special].—A back-to-work movement at the Wright Aeronautical corporation was started today following the strikers' acceptance of a tentative agreement ending a four-day walkout which cut production at four big plants in this area. The strikers—estimated at 20,000 by their CIO leader and at 7,000 by the company—voted 6 to 1 last night to end the walkout and entrust to their union leaders the task of arbitrating their grievances over the transfer of workers.

950 Employes Idle.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 11 [Special].—A wage dispute pending before the WLB today caused a strike that halted production in the open hearth and plate mill department of the Worth Steel company at nearby Claymont. Approximately 950 employes were idle.

Hailstorm Cuts Montana's Crops 4 Million Bushels

Glendive, Mont., Aug. 11 (AP).—Eastern Montana's loss of wheat and other grain crops in yesterday's hailstorm was estimated tonight at 4 million bushels. The hail battered at crops and damaged farm buildings in the Dagmar section.

William Bausch Elected Bausch & Lomb Chairman

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP).—William Bausch has been elected chairman of the board of Bausch & Lomb company, succeeding his brother, Edward Bausch, who died July 30. The new chairman has been with the firm 60 years.

STOCKS HIGHER AS INDUSTRIALS AND RAILS LEAD

Junior Motors and Utilities Quieter.

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Prominent rails and industrials today resumed leadership in another advancing stock market, but most of them failed to follow thru on early gains of fractions to more than a point. Recently sprinting low priced motors and utilities, altho lively at intervals, were unable to extend their bulge. Trends hardened after a mixed opening, but extreme advances were substantially reduced in numerous instances at the close.

Some investors reinstated commitments on a modest basis because of the belief the European war may not end as quickly as had been expected and that, by the time the Nazis crash, home corporations may have transition plans well in hand and be prepared for quick peace time operations.

Earnings Statements Aid.

Skeptics were plentiful, however, and they either stood aside or lightened accounts before leaving on the customary long summer week-end. Earnings statements and more optimism over domestic politics were bolstering factors.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.3 at 54.8, its third successive comeback. The market was broader, 863 issues appearing. Of these, 548 were up and 121 down. Transfers of 944,330 shares compared with 1,015,730 yesterday.

On the Curb Eversharp rose 4¾. Lesser gains were retained by Electric Bond and Share, American Gas, Creole Petroleum, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, and Pantepec. Turnover was 318,155 shares against 300,845 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS EXTEND RISE.

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—The bond market today advanced fractions to a point or more under leadership by rails. Volume, $6,284,000 against $5,418,000 yesterday, was the largest of the week and average gains, as measured by the Associated Press averages also were the best. Rails were up 0.3, low yields an equal amount, the industrials 0.1, and utilities and foreign issues were unchanged.

United States government loans, extremely quiet in recent markets, rose 1-32 to 4-32, following the trend of investment rated corporation securities.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices were higher yesterday in increased turnover on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among volume leaders were Chicago corporation, Middle West corporation, and Libby, McNeill & Libby, all unchanged. Six issues reached new 1944 highs.

AUTHORIZE PAY HIKE BY 30 LAKE SHIP COMPANIES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—The WLB today authorized 30 steamship companies operating on the Great Lakes to put in effect supplementary wage adjustments approved last June in a dispute involving the CIO National Maritime Union and four companies which operate ore boats.

The adjustments are intended to reëstablish the relationship between the pay of those covered by the original directive and those working for the 30 companies.

The board authorized an overtime rate of 95 cents an hour for unlicensed personnel on all work after eight hours a day. A bonus of 10 per cent of wages earned during the season will be paid to those on the vessels by Aug. 1 who remain until the season closes.

Rejection of Shoreland Hotel Bid Is Approved

A trustee's report rejecting a 1½ million dollar bid for the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore dr., was approved yesterday by Superior Court Judge Graber. The bid was offered by Irwin Siegal, Chicago apartment hotel owner. Five Burlington Construction Projects to Top 3½ Millions

The war production board has approved five construction projects planned by the Burlington railroad, the carrier announced yesterday. Costs will total $3,650,000.

To provide improved facilities for servicing and maintaining diesel freight, passenger, and switching locomotives serving Chicago, the road will construct a repair shop for diesel freight locomotives at Clyde [Ogden and 58th avs.] and enlarge and modernize facilities at 14th and Canal sts. for servicing Zephyr and other diesel passenger locomotives. The railroad estimated the two projects will cost approximately $700,000.

New Building Planned.

The new shop at Clyde will consist of a brick and glass block building 80 by 325 feet with facilities for inspection, light repairs, cleaning, oiling, and servicing four diesel freight locomotives at one time.

Improvements in the passenger yard at 14th and Canal sts. will include a 320 by 20 foot concrete and brick repair shop with facilities for servicing Zephyr and other passenger diesels during their brief layovers. An illustration of the quick servicing necessary is the Zephyr that arrives at Chicago at 2:55 p. m. from Minneapolis and departs 65 minutes later on the return trip. Much of that 65 minutes is needed to unload, turn and reload the train, leaving only limited time for inspecting and servicing the locomotive.

Needed for Added Traffic.

Executive Vice President Edward Flynn said the construction is urgently needed because of unprecedented freight and passenger traffic.

The Burlington also announced it will spend about $500,000 for new facilities for servicing diesel freight locomotives at Denver, and about $450,000 for converting part of its steam locomotive shop at West Burlington, Ia., to handle heavy repairs on diesel freight, passenger, and switching locomotives. It will install 228 miles of centralized traffic control between Lincoln and McCook, Neb., at a cost of more than 2 million dollars.

Drouth, Pests Cut Illinois Crops 7 Pct.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 11 (AP).—Drouth and insects have slashed 40 million dollars from Illinois crop values since July 1, more than half of it during the first 11 days of August, A. J. Surratt, state and federal agricultural statistician, said today in forecasting a 3 per cent cut in the state's 1944 corn production.

The loss is less than 7 per cent of the prospective 600 million dollar crop value on Illinois farms Aug. 1. Drouth, which is continuing, accounted for at least 85 per cent of the loss.

Corn Crop Damaged.

Corn suffered most. The Aug. 1 forecast of 415,370,000 bushels represents a 13,693,000 bushel drop from July 1 prospects. The yield was estimated at 45.5 bushels per acre, compared with a final 1943 yield of 50.0 and a 10 year average of 40.4.

Soybeans were reported to have suffered relatively less than corn. A 67,158,000 bushel soybean yield was indicated, compared with last year's 70,602,000.

"Soybean prospects on four-fifths of the state acreage should produce near average yields if good rains are received by mid-August," the report said.

GRAINS CLOSE EASY

Altho drouth conditions are becoming more acute east of the Mississippi river and a department of agriculture estimate cut 51 million bushels from the country's prospective corn yield, bullish influences counted for little yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade except for a brief period early. Commission house buying and short covering advanced oats, rye, and barley about 1 cent a bushel in early trading, but as soon as support was withdrawn, the markets weakened and the close was easy.

Wheat futures ended ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. Oats finished ¼ lower to ¼ higher and rye was ⅜ to ¾ lower, a decline of 1½ cents from the early high. Barley was ⅛ higher to ¼ lower.

PENNSYLVANIA DIVIDEND.

Answer: Pennsylvania paid dividends of $2.50 a share in 1943 and 1942 and has made one payment of $1 so far in 1944. If continuance of the $2.50 rate be assumed, the yield at the recent price of approximately 30 would be about 8.3 per cent.

A yield of that high rate in the present market, in which top grade corporation bonds yield less than 3 per cent, does not indicate that investors regard the railroad's dividend as entirely "safe" so far as the recent amount is concerned. Pennsylvania's dividend record, however, is outstanding. The company has made cash distributions to stockholders each year since 1847. In several of the unfavorable business years of the 1930's, however, the annual dividend totaled only 50 cents a share.

War time earnings have provided a wide margin of coverage for the $2.50 dividend, amounting, per share, to $6.49 in 1943 and $7.71 in 1942. For the first five months of 1944, they declined to $1.76 from $2.53 in the same period last year.

In the immediate pre-war period, or from 1934 thru 1939, the dividends averaged approximately $1 a share a year and earnings $2.72.

For several reasons, Pennsylvania ranks high among railroad stocks. Among them are the long unbroken dividend record and the geographical position of the lines, serving the country's greatest industrial districts. The company's financial policies have been regarded as conservative.

Nevertheless, representing a junior claim on earnings and assets, the stock is subject, in some degree, to customary business risks.

BUDD GETS BOUQUET FOR HIS ANSWER TO BIDDLE RAIL ATTACK

Chicago florists yesterday told with flowers what they think about the recent attack of Atty. Gen. Biddle on the western railroads. When Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington railroad and former defense transportation commissioner, walked into his office yesterday afternoon, he found what he described as the largest bouquet he had ever seen. Accompanying the flowers was a card which said:

Ralph Budd.

"To Ralph Budd, who as defense transportation commissioner appointed by President Roosevelt, did such outstanding work during the defense period helping to prepare the railroads for war. The Allied Florists Association of Illinois presents these flowers to Mr. Budd and all the railroads in recognition of the great contribution the railroads have made to America's war effort."

Officials of the association, which has 900 members, said they were inspired to make the presentation by a story and small cartoon in the financial section of The Tribune yesterday. In the story Budd denied Biddle's charges that the western railroads have a "czar-like boss" who tells them what to do.

SENATORS STUDY WAR MATERIAL SUPPLY DISPUTE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—Asserting that military men have shown "unjustified" opposition to use of surplus materials for civilian production, Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] announced today a senate war investigating committee inquiry to determine whether a scarcity of war materials exists.

In a statement addressed to the senate, he agreed with the opinion expressed Monday by former Chairman Truman [D., Mo.] that resumption of production of vital civilian articles had been disappointing because of the development of new war needs "and because of the vehement objections of the military."

Mead said the inquiry would be started at a closed session next Wednesday when Chairman Nelson and Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, WPB director of material, would be questioned about suppression of a statistical supply summary because army officials were said to believe it might be misinterpreted and give an impression that the supply situation is more favorable than it actually is.

Senate Group to Decide Submission of Oil Pact

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—A decision on whether the recently drafted Anglo-American oil agreement should be submitted to the senate for ratification probably will be left to the foreign relations committee, Chairman Maloney [D., Conn.] of a special petroleum investigating committee said today.

PORK SUPPLIES SHRINK AS HOG RECEIPTS FALL

Even Federal Need May Go Unfilled.

The tightest pork situation since this country entered the war in 1941 has developed as a result of the growing hog shortage, Chicago stock yards interests said yesterday. Heavy demands for early delivery of pork to the military and lend-lease may go unfilled unless farmers ship more hogs to market, and it was doubted that movement will increase for several weeks.

Only 10,000 hogs arrived at the yards, including directs to packers, the smallest Friday total since last Oct. 8, the week the office of price administration established the ceiling of $14.75 a hundred pounds. The supply was among the lowest for any day except Saturdays in almost two years. Twenty leading packing centers, including Chicago, received 52,000 head, 16 per cent under a week ago and 29 per cent below a year ago.

Withhold Heavy Hogs.

An unconfirmed report that the OPA is considering a plan to eliminate the $14.00 ceiling on heavy hogs received wide circulation in the last few days. The report caused some farmers to hold back heavy hogs which they had expected to ship, it was said.

Packing plants thruout the country are being forced to reduce operations because they cannot get enough hogs. One large Chicago plant will suspend hog butchering today and Monday. Several others will be unable to operate today.

Spokesmen for some of the leading packing companies complained that recent advances in the prices paid for hogs had put their operations far into the "red." The rise in their dressed costs has been far larger than is indicated by the advance in the average price of live hogs because of the lower quality of hogs bringing average prices as a result of the scarcity, they said.

Push Against Ceilings.

Almost all classes continued to push against the two price ceilings that are enforced by OPA, $14.00 for hogs over 240 pounds, and $14.75 for stock weighing 240 pounds or less. However, some of the kinds of hogs that bring these prices would not sell within $3 to $4 a hundred pounds of the top price with normal ample supplies, packers said. As a result dressed meat costs have skyrocketed the last few weeks. The hog average, at $14.35, equaled the highest daily cost since last October, but bought a far inferior drove than the $12.50 average at the low time of last June, it was said.

Cattle and lamb markets were steady.

TONS OF OHIO TOMATOES ROT; 'PRICE TOO LOW'

Cleveland, O., Aug. 11 (AP).—Northern Ohio growers today said tons of tomatoes were rotting in piles on the ground or unpicked on the vines because wholesale prices were far below actual production costs.

A survey disclosed many producers were unable to sell their tomatoes at any price. Others were offered only 10 to 20 cents a peck, contrasted with $1.50 at the start of the season three weeks ago. The crop was reported large.

Growers said expenses raising production costs include payment of 40 to 60 cents an hour to pickers, plus hauling costs and 5 cents apiece for peck size marketing baskets.
